CONVICTS CALLED TO FIGHT BIG FIRE IN JEFFERSON CITY

Thomas Building Is Destroyed and Adjacent Property Barely Is Saved.

PROPERTY LOSS $30,000

All Members and Attaches of Legislature Go to See Spectacular Burning.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 3.—The Thomas Building, one of the largest office buildings in the capital, in which the newspaper correspondents, the Wells Fargo Express and the Postal Telegraph Co. had offices, was destroyed by fire today with virtually all its contents.

A number of other structures adjoining were threatened. The fire department had difficulty in getting to the fire before it gained headway. The smoke drove all occupants from the building and even the occupants of the first floor had no time to take out their effects.

A force of convicts from the State penitentiary, with the fire equipment from that institution, was hurried to the scene to prevent the spread of the fire from the Thomas Building to adjoining structures.

The work of these trained fire fighters, more than anything else, was responsible for the fire's being held to the building in which it started.

The fire attracted all the members of the Legislature and its clerical force and most of the inhabitants of the capital. The Thomas Building was on Madison street, within a half block of the Madison Hotel, and adjoined property worth $500,000.

Loss on Thomas Building $30,000.

The damage to the Thomas Building and its contents is placed at $30,000.

The Eagles' Lodge, equipped with several thousand dollars worth of property, occupied the third floor. The local trainmen also had headquarters there. On the second floor were the offices of the newspaper correspondents and a valuable law library, the property of William C. Irwin.

On the first floor were the offices of the Postal Telegraph and the Wells Fargo Express companies. The basement was filled with coal. The flames ascended through the air flues to the offices and drove the occupants from the building. The women stenographers on the second floor ran down stairs when the smoke first filled the offices and were unable to return to get their hats or wraps.

Thomas Directs Firemen.

Irwin, who ran to the street from his law office, lost everything except his typewriter, which was taken from a window by a negro. Mayor Thomas, the owner of the building, is equipping other offices for the occupants in another building.

He stayed on the scene and directed the firemen in their work. Several hundred blank cartridges used by the Elks exploded and scattered the crowd.

Louis Schirmer, manager of the Postal Telegraph Co., was unable to remove the instruments or anything of value.

The fumes of gas from burning coal in the cellar made it impossible for the firemen to enter the building.

MAN WHO SHOT GAYNOR IS DEAD IN AN ASYLUM

Paresis Kills James J. Gallagher, Who Had Been Transferred From Prison to New Jersey Asylum.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 3.—James J. Gallagher, the man who shot Mayor Gaynor of New York, nearly two years ago at Hoboken, N. J., died of paresis today at the New Jersey State Hospital for the Insane in this city.

He had been at the State hospital since Jan. 18, 1912, having been transferred there from the New Jersey State Prison, where he had been sentenced to serve 12 years on a charge of assault upon Street Commissioner William Edwards of New York City, who was with Mayor Gaynor at the time. At Gaynor's request, he never was prosecuted for shooting the Mayor.

Gallagher's act was prompted by disappointment from having been discharged from a municipal position in New York City.

PARIS FLOOD RISING TWO INCHES AN HOUR

Part of City Near River Seine Already Under Water and Rain Is Continuing.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Fears of a repetition of the disastrous inundations which occurred in Paris in the winter of 1910-11 have been aroused in the last 48 hours by the rapid rising of the River Seine. The water today is mounting about two inches an hour.

In the low lying quarters of the city, especially in the southwestern district at Bercy, the water has overflowed into the streets. The Rue Watt, near the Tolbiac Bridge, was the first to be flooded. It is several inches under water and consternation reigns among the occupants of nearby houses.

Rain ceased this morning in Paris, but it continues to fall heavily in the upcountry regions.

The snow was general in the Middle West and as far south as the Texas Panhandle.

Official forecast for St. Louis and vicinity: Cloudy tonight and Tuesday; colder tonight, with lowest temperature about 16 degrees.

TOO MUCH SLEEP BREEDS CRIME, PHYSICIAN SAYS

He Contends That if One Can Take Just Seven Hours Things Will Be Normal.

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 3.—"Seven hours' sleep is all that is necessary for any human being, and if obtained regularly in certain hours nightly will keep the body and mind in a healthy state," said Dr. Foertmeyer, Coroner of Cincinnati, regarded an authority of criminology.

"Much of the crime of today is due to too much or too little sleep. A person who sleeps over seven hours has had too much rest, which makes the mind sluggish and the muscles lazy. On the other hand, the person who has not had sufficient sleep is mentally and physically unfit to perform his or her duties with that snap and vim found in persons who have had the required rest.

"Men and women who commit crime, as a rule, are long sleepers. Their minds grow weak from too much sleep and then they acquire the 'don't care' habit, which often results in crime.

"Make it a rule to sleep seven hours, and you will be better for it mentally, physically and financially."

VINSON M'LEAN SPANKED

Daring Nurse Lands One on Heir to Many Millions.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 3.—Vinson McLean, the three-year-old son of Edward B. McLean of Washington, who said the other day that his reasons for having three detectives and two male nurses care for the boy was that he wanted him to be brought up a "man's boy," yesterday was spanked by a woman. Soon afterward this woman, his mother's maid, packed up and left hastily for the north.

One of the detectives just outside the boy's door heard the first resounding slap and interfered the moment the second one landed, all of which goes to show that the greatest possible precautions will occasionally prove ineffective.

MRS. REEDY CALLS STORY OF WATERED MILK "FAIRY TALE"

Editor's Wife Denies Accusation by Former Employe of Her Clonmel Dairy.

SAYS PRODUCT IS PURE

Deposition Made in Clayton Charges Adulteration of Three Gallons in Each Ten.

Poesy and the pure-food movement jangled painfully Monday, when Mrs. William Marion Reedy, wife of the editor of the St. Louis Mirror, was accused by a former employe of watering the product of Clonmel Dairy. The dairy is the business end of the idyllic rural residence of the Reedys, in Webster Township.

"It's all a fairy tale," Mrs. Reedy told a Post-Dispatch reporter, when she was told of the charge. "I will be ready to disprove the charge when the matter comes up in court next week. I will have analyses of the milk, but I don't want to give my case away. I am trying to get the money that is due me, and the dairyman whom I dealt with is trying to put up an excuse for not paying me. That is all there is to it."

Mrs. Reedy is suing J. E. Clay, proprietor of a Brentwood dairy, for $730.50 for milk sold by her to him. As his defense in the suit, Clay attacks the quality of the milk, and says it contained so much water that his customers would not "stand for" it.

Clay obtained the testimony of George A. Craft, until lately employed at Clonmel. Craft gave a deposition in a lawyer's office at Clayton Monday, in which he stated that he had instructions to put three gallons of water in every 10 gallons of milk, Mrs. Reedy saying she might as well water the milk as to leave it for someone else to water.

Craft said Mrs. Reedy's 18 to 20 cows yielded 22 to 24 gallons of milk a day, but that by the time the milk reached Clay, there was 26 to 31 gallons of it. The difference, he said, was supplied from the kitchen faucet. Sometimes, he said, Mrs. Reedy did the watering in person.

He said he objected to the watering process, but that his scruples were laid to rest by an increase of his pay from $20 to $30 a month. One day, he said, Clay was at Clonmel at milking time, and Mrs. Reedy told him to water the milk if he got a chance, and if not, to let it go. He had to let it go, and Clay got only 22 gallons that day.

His duty, he said, was to keep the milk "up to the standard," by watering it in the regular proportion.

"I don't know a thing about it," said Editor Reedy, in his sanctum, "not a thing."

BANDIT WHOM DETECTIVE KILLED A FOOTBALL STAR

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—James Higgins, the highwayman, who was killed by Detective Otten while holding up a saloon early Sunday, was a graduate of a West Side college and a star member of its football team the last two years of his course, the police learned today.

Higgins was 23 years old, and is said to have been a chum of "Trilby" Thompson, who escaped from Joliet penitentiary a few months ago, and who is sought by the police in connection with several recent robberies.

UNITED SHOE CO. NO TRUST, DECIDES SUPREME COURT

Ruling Is First Hard Blow to Government's Campaign Under Sherman Law.

NO RULING ON LEASES

Government Will Prosecute Officials Under Remaining Monopoly Indictment.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The Government today suffered its first big defeat in the recent anti-trust campaign when the Supreme Court held that the officials of the United Shoe Machinery Co. had not violated the Sherman law, by organizing that company.

The Court, however, did not pass upon the legality of the system by which the company leases machines on condition that no "independent" machinery be used.

The Government will prosecute officials of the United Shoe Machinery Co. under the one remaining indictment, it was announced at the Department of Justice today. That indictment charges monopoly and unfair competitive methods and is declared by officials to be the most important and strongest of the indictments returned against the company.

The action in the Supreme Court grew out of the Massachusetts Federal Courts annulling one of two indictments brought against the Shoe Machinery Co. officials. The Massachusetts court took the position that the indictment did not state an offense under the Sherman law.

The Government appealed to the Supreme Court by virtue of the criminal appeals act of 1907 on the ground that it did state an offense.

Attacked Leasing System.

The Government in the indictment alleged that Sidney W. Winslow, Edward P. Hurd, George W. Brown, William Barbour and Elmer P. Howe violated the law, first by organizing the United Shoe Machinery corporation, and second, by a system of leasing their machines, whereby patrons were compelled to promise not to use any machinery made by independents and to use only that made by the alleged combine.

The charge was that the Shoe Machinery corporation took over the business of the Consolidated and McKay Lasting Machine Co., manufacturing 60 per cent of all lasting machines; the McKay Shoe Machinery Co., manufacturing 70 per cent of all heeling machines and 80 per cent of all metallic fastening machines, and of the Goodyear Shoe Machinery Co., manufacturing 80 per cent of all welt sewing and out-sole stitching machines.

The Government maintained this put about 80 per cent of the business of manufacturing shoe machinery into one concern and that, being an "undue proportion" of the trade, was a violation of the law. It did not allege there had been unfair competition, as in the Standard Oil or Tobacco cases.

The Shoe Machinery officials declared the Supreme Court could not review the action of the Massachusetts court because the criminal appeals act was repealed by not being included in the judicial code of 1912, and also said the organization of the corporation was a normal trade development. They further urged that the groups consolidated into the corporation were non-competing and that the leasing system was justified by the patent laws.

Justice Holmes, announcing the unanimous decision of the court, said the lower court regarded the indictment as merely referring to the organization of the company, not to the "tying clause" leases. That being the case, he added, the Supreme Court must accept that interpretation without question. He said this reduced the case to a narrow compass and pointed out that the several groups combined in the organization of the United Shoe Machinery were non-competitive. The Justice declared the Sherman law did not contemplate the doing of business by the smallest possible isolated units.

Concerns Only One Case.

Two indictments were brought against the shoe machinery officials. The decision today concerned only one of these indictments.

"On the face of it, the combination," said Justice Holmes, "was simply an effort for greater efficiency. The business of the several groups that combined, as it existed before the combination, is assumed to have been legal.

"It is hard to see why the collective business should be any worse than its component parts.

"We can see no greater objection to one corporation manufacturing 70 per cent of three non-competing groups of patented machines collectively used for making a single product, than to three corporations making the same proportion of one group each. The disintegration aimed at by the statute does not extend to reducing all manufacture to isolated units of the lowest degree."

The Justice concluded the opinion by holding that the Federal appeals act had not been repealed by the judiciary code which went into effect Jan. 1, 1912, and, therefore, the Supreme Court had jurisdiction to review the decision of the lower court in the case.

SECRETARY TUMULTY TO MOVE UP WITH WILSON

Tumulty has been associated with Wilson since the gubernatorial campaign three years ago. He continued, however, to discharge the duties of secretary without salary.

A. L. HENSCHEN SUED FOR DIVORCE; WED 16 MONTHS

Wife Charges Son of Commission Man Threw Knives and Forks at Her.

Fern Ima Henschen, wife of Arthur Lee Henschen, son of Ernest Henschen, president of the Henschen-Goerner Commission Co. of 1027 North Third street, Monday morning filed a suit for divorce.

The Henschens were married Oct. 3, 1911, following an elopement to Clayton. The Henschen family was opposed to the marriage of the son because of his youthfulness. In obtaining the marriage license he gave his age as 22, but members of his family allege he was only 19 on his wedding day.

Mrs. Henschen before her marriage had been a pressfeeder for the Stewart-Scott Press Co. She was 19 years old. Young Henschen became enamored of her after having met her at a fancy dress ball.

Says He Threw Knives.

Mrs. Henschen alleges that a month after her marriage her husband threw knives and forks at her, threatened to hit her on the head with a milk bottle and slapped her violently in the face.

She also charges that on Labor day of 1912, 20 days before the birth of her child, Fern Evelyn, her husband, without any notice to her, invited friends home to dinner, and when he found her lying down for a rest when he came home upbraided her for "being lazy and neglecting her household duties."

The petition charges Henschen objected to his wife's receiving visits from her mother and sisters and others of her family, and that when Mrs. Henschen was ill in bed with her week-old baby, Henschen ordered his wife's sister, May, who was visiting her, to leave the house.

Charges He Threatened Her.

She says her husband on Jan. 28 threatened to kill her and her baby and to take his own life. On this occasion he later notified his wife, she declares, that he would leave her the following Sunday and never return or provide for her and the baby. Mrs. Henschen asks the custody of the child and alimony.

Arthur Lee Henschen is employed by his father. The Henschens resided at 2737 Michigan avenue. F. A. and L. A. Wind are attorneys for Mrs. Henschen.

Thirty-Sixth State's Approval of Amendment to Constitution Makes the Necessary Two-Thirds Required; Congress Now Will Enact Law for Levy.

BILL EXPECTED AT EXTRA SESSION

Tax Is Expected to Strike All Incomes of More Than $5000 a Year and to Procure for the Government Annual Receipt of $100,000,000.

THIRTY-SEVEN STATES HAVE VOTED FOR TAX

FOLLOWING is the list of states which have ratified the income tax amendment:

Alabama,	Missouri,
Arkansas,	Montana,
Arizona,	Nebraska,
California,	Nevada,
Colorado,	New York,
Delaware,	North Carolina,
Georgia,	North Dakota,
Idaho,	Oklahoma,
Illinois,	Oregon,
Indiana,	South Carolina,
Iowa,	South Dakota,
Kansas,	Tennessee,
Kentucky,	Texas,
Maine,	Washington,
Maryland,	Wisconsin,
Michigan,	Louisiana,
Minnesota,	Ohio,
Mississippi,	West Virginia,
	Wyoming.

The following rejected:

Connecticut,	Rhode Island,
New Hampshire,	Utah.

No action or only partial action was taken in the seven other states.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—An income tax is now one of the provisions of the Constitution of the United States.

Wyoming's ratification today of the income tax amendment—the sixteenth change in the Constitution and the first since the reconstruction—completes a list of 36 states—three-fourths of the Union—which have approved the provision.

Not a dissenting vot was registered in either House on the nt resolution It had been adopted in Senate and was taking the usual cou until the legislators learned that onl one state was needed to make the ame ent effective. Thereupon when the Senate met today, Senator Kendrick moved the resolution be taken up under a suspension of the rules and voted upon. This was done and it at once was forwarded to the House, where it also was passed.

After passing the income tax amendment, the House took up and passed at 11:15 Montana time the resolution authorizing the direct election of United States Senators also unanimously.

The Senate has a similar resolution before it.

New Mexico Desirous to Pass Decisive Vote on Amendment.

SANTA FE, N. M., Feb. 3.—Although the Federal income tax amendment was on the House calendar today, it was not known when the House convened today just when it would be taken up for consideration. There was apparent among the House members a desire that New Mexico's vote should be the one to make the amendment effective, but no definite plans had been made for hastening its consideration.

House leaders stated that the ratification resolution might be taken up for a vote any time before adjournment.

WYOMING WINS THREE-STATE RACE

Beats New Mexico and New Jersey in Aspiration for Income Amendment Honors.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 3.—Wyoming wrested from New Mexico today the honor of being the thirty-sixth state to ratify the proposed amendment to the Federal Constitution providing for an income tax. The necessary three-fourths of the 48 states have now ratified the amendment, and it will be added to the Constitution.

Wyoming snatched the honor through the unexpected action of its Legislature in passing, under suspension of the rules, the resolution favoring the tax.

Congress now will enact a law to levy the tax, and it probably will become effective during the extraordinary session to be called by President-elect Wilson in March. The tax itself, its provisions and its limitations, are all left to Congress.

The new law probably will supersede the corporation tax and provide for a tax on all incomes above $5000, although there has been some sentiment in favor of making the limit as low as $4000.

Congressional leaders who have been preparing for the final ratification by the states estimate an income tax would bring in about $100,000,000 a year to the Government.

Now that the tax is provided by the Constitution the proposed excise tax, framed by Democratic leaders in 1912 to meet the Supreme Court's decision which held a former income tax unconstitutional, will be dropped and some of its provisions may be included in the new law.

West Virginia ratified the amendment last week. One House in New Jersey and one in New Mexico have approved it. Wyoming's ratification was wholly unexpected at this time.

The Democrats have been confident of the ultimate success of the income tax amendment and have made their tariff plans with this in view.

Representative Hull of Tennessee, who prepared the excise tax bill which Congress failed to pass last session, is working upon the income tax provision. When finally introduced, the income tax will be designed to take the place of both the existing corporation tax law and the proposed excise tax.

The income tax legislation must originate in the House, as do the tariff bills.

Delaware Passes Resolution and Claims First Honors.

Dover, Del., Feb. 3.—Delaware's Legislature, unaware of the action of the Wyoming solons, rushed ratification of the Federal income tax amendment through both houses today, in an effort to be the thirty-sixth to approve it.

According to the Speaker of the House, final action was taken at 10:55 o'clock Eastern time this morning. Delaware is, therefore, claiming the honor of having cast the deciding vote in favor of the amendment.

TWO MEN SLIGHTLY HURT IN COLLISION OF AUTOS

Touring Car, Driven at High Speed, Runs Into Taxi Just Leaving Garage.

Ed Redemeyer, 21 years old, of 5141 G d avenue, drove a big touring car, gh speed, into a taxicab in front of 4 Delmar boulevard, at 12:30 p. m. Monday, and both vehicles were wrecked.

With Fred Holcomb, a chauffeur of 4866 Page boulevard, as a passenger, Redemeyer was driving east at a speed the police estimated as between 30 and 40 miles an hour. The taxicab, driven by Wiley Jones, just had backed out of the Columbia Taxicab Co.'s garage at 4535 Delmar boulevard and was turning east.

The collision threw Holcomb to the street, and he was scratched and bruised. Redemeyer was bruised slightly and Jones was unhurt. The damage to the touring car, which was owned by the St. Louis Stearns agency, was $700, according to the police, and to the taxicab $300. Redemeyer was arrested.

PACKING FIRM'S MEETING ENJOINED BY COURT

Judge Issues Restraining Order at Request of Carondelet Concern's Minority.

At the request of minority stockholders, Judge Taylor Monday issued a temporary order restraining the Carondelet Packing Co. of 9000 Ivory avenue from holding a stockholders' meeting, which was scheduled for Monday night. Arguments on the injunction will be heard Wednesday.

The plaintiffs are Fred Einstrup, Jacob Westermann, Ferdinand Schindler and Albert Schierman, who say they were elected directors of the company at a meeting Jan. 13. Because they voted their stock cumulatively, they allege, the majority stockholders denied the validity of the election and called another. The company is capitalized at $60,000.

GOV. DUNNE, WIFE AND 9 CHILDREN FILL CAR

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.

GOV-ELECT EDWARD F. DUNNE, when he departed for Springfield for his long-deferred inauguration, was accompanied by Mrs. Dunne and their nine children.

The party made a comfortable load for a private car, the use of which was tendered by the Chicago and Alton Railroad, but Dunne insisted on paying full fare for each member of his family.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 3.—In Representative Hall, where 20 years ago John P. Altgeld took the oath of office, Gov. Edward F. Dunne, the first Democratic executive since Altgeld, and other new State officers, were inaugurated at noon today in the presence of the Senate and House of an assemblage of citizens which filled the hall. The oath was administered by Chief Justice Frank Dunn of Charleston.

At 10:30 the new officers and their wives and the outgoing State officers and their wives, with the exception of Gov. and Mrs. Deneen, and the members of the Legislative Inaugural Committee, assembled at the St. Nicholas Hotel and were escorted to the executive mansion by the Cook County Democratic Marching Club, the Jefferson Marching Club of Joliet and the Democratic Marching Club of Bloomington.

At the executive mansion Gov. and Mrs. Deneen joined the party and the parade proceeded through the principal business streets to the Statehouse.

Dunne Lauds Deneen.

Retiring Gov. Deneen made a five-minute speech, referring briefly to the simplicity of the American form of government and the ease with which a transfer of administration was made. He concluded by presenting Gov. Dunne, who delivered his inaugural address.

In peculiar contrast to the unfortunate incident which occurred at the time Gov. Altgeld was leaving office and Gov. Tanner was taking up the position Govs. Dunne and Deneen exchanged "bouquets" of courtesy.

"I deem it my duty, as I know it is my pleasure, to express a few words in appreciation of the kindly courtesy extended to myself and my wife by Gov. Deneen and his amiable wife between the day of election and the day of this inaugural," said Dunne.

After the ceremonies, Gov. and Mrs. Dunne were driven to the executive mansion, of which they took immediate charge. Gov. and Mrs. Deneen took an afternoon train for Chicago.

Immediate enactment of legislation giving all cities the right to build or buy and to operate their public utilities, and an amendment to the Constitution to obtain the initiative and referendum were recommended, among other things, by Gov. Dunne, in his inaugural address to the Legislature.

Gov. Dunne says most cities may not be ready as yet to operate other than waterworks. To carry out the plan of municipal ownership, he says, cities should be empowered to issue bonds, subject to a referendum and reasonable safeguards.

"If such rights are given," says the Governor, "it will force private corporations now furnishing these utilities to give decent service at decent rates or face the alternative of public ownership. Important as it is to give cities the right to manage their own public utilities, it is also important to give to state and local bodies large powers of regulation of the public utilities that remain in private hands."

For Utilities Commission.

Gov. Dunne recommends the creation of a public utilities commission, with large powers to control the issue of securities, the character of service and the charges.

The Governor also recommends that the necessary legislative steps be taken to amend the article of the Constitution which provides that the assembly shall have no power to propose amendments to more than one article of the Constitution at the same session. Gov Dunne says an amendment providing the initiative and referendum first should be proposed, after which proposed amendments relating to revenue and taxation should be considered.

Other recommendations are:

Ratification of amendment for popular election of United States Senators.

Passage of corrupt practices act.

Improvement of civil service law.

Consolidation of Chicago park systems.

Shorter Ballot Recommended.

Shorter ballot and providing rotation of names on ballots.

A law making the breaking of a written political pledge by a public official a felony.

King Menelik Reported Dead

Grandson Placed on His Throne

Made Abyssinia a Warlike Nation

Noted Ruler Had Passion for Lions and Kept Great "Stable" of Them.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—King Menelik of Abyssinia is dead, according to a dispatch received here from Addis-Abeba today.

His successor, Prince Lidji Jeassu, one of his grandsons, entered the capital Sunday with great gomp.

Prince Lidj Jeassu, who is said to have entered the Abyssinian capital as the new Emperor, is only 17 years of age. He is a youth of great intelligence, son of Ras Michael, a powerful Prince and Governor of three Abyssinian provinces, whose wife was Menelik's daughter.

There have been many rumors during the past five years of Menelik's death. It was reported at one time that the fact was being suppressed and that the Empress was conducting the affairs of the Abyssinian kingdom until Lidj Jeassu was old enough to take the government into his own hands. This was denied officially.

At the beginning of last year Menelik was reported to be paralyzed below the waist, and uncertainty has reigned as to whether he was really dead or alive.

SCION OF SOLOMON AND SHEBA QUEEN

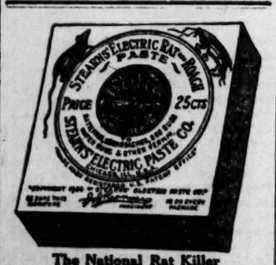

The ruler of Abyssinia, who styled himself Menelik II, Victorious Lion of the Tribe of Judah, King of the Kings of Ethiopia, Lieutenant of God, was born in 1844 and was crowned King in 1889.

He always claimed to be a direct descendant of King Solomon, through the Queen of Sheba, and a few years ago an ancient Abyssinian manuscript which seemd to bear out this claim was discovered and translated by Dr. Enno Littmann of Princeton University.

According to this manuscript, the Queen of Sheba went to Jerusalem to visit King Solomon, of whose reputed wisdom she had heard. She was disguised in male attire, but the wise Solomon was not deceived by the disguise. He had some hundreds of wives at the time and was not averse to taking another, so he married the Queen of Sheba, according to the Abyssinian manuscript.

A son born to this union is believed by the Abyssinians to have been an ancestor of King Menelik, who made the claim that he was able to trace his descent directly through the centuries from King Solomon.

Menelik for many years has been known as a progressive monarch. Some years ago he sent an envoy to the European nations and to the United States, commissioned to inquire into conditions in these civilized countries, with a view to adopting available ideas in his own land. This envoy, who is said to have had a thousand wives and 3000 servants at his home, visited President Roosevelt, who in turn sent an American envoy to convey our respects to King Menelik.

MENELIK'S CHIEF HERO WAS COL. ROOSEVELT

KING MENELIK'S chief hero of contemporary times was Col. Roosevelt, a biography of whom was said to be his favorite book.

Menelik was democratic in private life, but he was fond of traveling over his empire under a gorgeous canopy, accompanied by a great train of servants and courtiers, to attend ceremonies incident to the installation of new public works.

He wore a broad-brimmed hat of American make when not in state dress. On ceremonial occasions his robe was made of the skins of black leopards and black-maned lions. He kept a great "stable" of lions, that beast being his favorite.

He wore a big diamond stud in his left ear and a plain gypsy ring on the little finger of his right hand.

He always insisted that he must not be classed as a descendant of Ham—that is, an African negro—but that he should be considered as of the tribe of Judah.

TWO WOMEN SEEN AT HOUSE WHERE GAS KILLED BOYS

East Side Driver Believes Mother of Young Stebbins Entered Flat Before Midnight.

CAME OUT SOON AFTER

Police Think It Possible Some One Sought Death of Women, and Recall Old Killing.

Mrs. Pearl Stebbins and Mrs. Nell Carpenter, mothers of the two boys mysteriously asphyxiated in the Penn Flats, 628 Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, were held by the police Monday for the Grand Jury, following a Coroner's verdict which accused them of having caused the boys' death. The boys were George Stebbins, 14 years old, and Ralph Carpenter, 6 years old.

The only thing which the police consider proven, thus far, is that some person went into the basement, and with an ice pick turned on the gas and thus caused it to flow through an uncapped pipe into Mrs. Carpenter's room, next to the room in which the two boys slept.

The door between Mrs. Carpenter's room and the boys' room was closed, and a chair, a table and a dresser were in a position which suggested a barricade. But examination of the house showed that the furniture was in equal disorder in every room.

Says Transom Was Closed.

Whether the transom between the rooms was open, or whether the gas leaked into the boys' room through cracks, was a question not fully determined. There was testimony at the Coroner's inquest that it was open, but Detective Florence, who arrived some time after the finding of the boys' bodies, says he found it closed.

Mrs. Amelia Maulding, her two sons, and Norman Mitchell and his wife, living in the flat above, would probably have been asphyxiated had not Mrs. Maulding awakened and opened the windows. Her sons had difficulty in reviving Mitchell, who was over the room in which the gas was flowing.

Mrs. Stebbins and Mrs. Carpenter, with their boys, had lived together since last summer. The mothers were frequently seen in all-night resorts, and neighbors say the boys had to shift for themselves.

Mrs. Stebbins says her husband disappeared 11 years ago. Mrs. Carpenter is separated from her husband, Jasper Carpenter, who lives in Ziegler, Ill. He has been notified of the boy's death, and has replied that he would come to East St. Louis at once. His 8-year-old boy has lived with him since the separation.

Mrs. Stebbins was acquainted in 1908 with John Bell, and this acquaintance was said to have caused the killing of Bell in a "Valley" resort. Rainey Johnson was tried for this killing, and was acquitted. She has continued her acquaintance with Johnson, but has frequently been seen with other men.

Saturday night the women gave the boys money to go to a picture show. After the boys had gone, they set out for a night in the cafes and wineroom.

Saw Two Women at House.

Whether the women, or either of them, returned to the flat during the night is probably the most important question relating to the mystery.

Holmes Addison, a driver, testified at the inquest that he saw two women and a man in front of the house at 11 p. m., and that he saw a woman he believed to be Mrs. Stebbins enter the house, coming out after a few minutes. He said he believed the other woman was Mrs. Carpenter, but was not positive.

Joseph Wurzer said Monday that he was with Mrs. Carpenter from 11 p. m. until 4 a. m., and accompanied her to the house when, shortly before 4, she found the boys' bodies. Her screams aroused the Mauldings, who had gone back to bed after their escape from asphyxiation, which occurred at about 2:30. Wurzer says he was not near her house earlier in the night.

Chief of Police Overmire says he has found witnesses who will testify that Mrs. Stebbins left Christ & Boyd's saloon, on Missouri avenue, about 3 a. m., going out alone. Mrs. Stebbins said she went to another saloon. She was arrested at 11 a. m. Sunday, after several hours' search, in a house on East Broadway. She was intoxicated and did not testify at the inquest Sunday evening.

Some of the police investigators of the case hold the theory that the gas was turned on in the basement by some person who meant to kill, not the boys, but one or both of the women.

A lighted lamp was standing on the floor of the room where the boys were asphyxiated. Gas men say that if the flame of the lamp had been a few inches higher, there would have been an explosion. As it was, the gas rose to the ceiling and penetrated to the second floor and did not reach the floor of the boys' room.

MAIL BOYS CAPTURE A HUNGRY BICYCLE THIEF

A warrant will be applied for against Mathias Rentalla, who is charged with stealing a bicycle from the Eighth street side of the postoffice Monday morning. Rentalla was captured after a chase of three blocks by three messenger boys. The machine is owned by Harry Brentrup, 2809 Madison street, and is valued at $65.

Several bicycles have been stolen from the same place in the last few weeks, and the messenger boys have been taking turns in watching the machines. The lookout saw Rentalla board one of the bicycles and ride away. After he was arrested he admitted stealing the machine, but said hunger drove him to do it.

He came from Norway seven months ago and being unable to find agreeable work in New York, came to St. Louis. After he had spent the $2 he had after arriving here, he needed money with which to buy food, he said.

LOVE TAKES FARE ON ROUND-WORLD RUBBERNECK SHIP

One Marriage, Three Engagements, and a Lot More Rumored, Result of Tour.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3.—One marriage, three engagements and the rumor of at least half a dozen more betrothals marked the round-the-world tour of the steamship Cleveland, from New York, which has reached here. She was known as the "Widows' Ship," because of the large number of widows among the 27 eligible young women aboard. There were 30 bachelors. There were also many cozy corners. All the passengers are talking of the eventful trip.

At Honolulu there was a loss of two passengers. A. G. Ayer, a millionaire of Baker, Ore., and Mrs. Fleckerson, a wealthy widow of Hawaii. Ayer was formerly an extensive grower of sheep and is reputed one of the richest men in Eastern Oregon.

Engaged in Three Days.

One of the most interesting of the three engagements announced was that of Herr August Funks, millionaire mine owner of Germany, and Miss Myra Raeder of New York. The couple were introduced over the rail of the vessel and two days later they had earned the title of the "inseparables." Three days later their engagement was discussed. They plan to be married in New York within two weeks, after which they will spend their honeymoon on the bridegroom's estate near Essen, Germany.

Much speculation on the part of the passengers was the result of close friendship between young Talbot Hanan, son of a wealthy shoe manufacturer of New York, and Miss Leslie Jones of Oreville, Cal. Miss Jones did not deny that she was fond of Hanan, but she refused to confirm a rumor that they had become engaged.

Roy T. Connolly of Detroit and Miss Gladys Jaeger of New York made no secret of their affair. "We met the first day out and fell in love with each other," they chorused. "Perhaps many moonlight nights on the forward deck, listening to the sounds of music and the murmur of the water, fostered our affections and hastened their buddings, but, however that may be, we are to be one in the future."

NO HABEAS CORPUS FOR JACK JOHNSON IN MANN ACT CASE

Supreme Court Denies Writ Asked in Behalf of Negro Pugilist.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The Supreme Court today dismissed the appeal of Jack Johnson, the negro pugilist, indicted in Chicago on a charge of violating the Mann act, from the decision of the Federal Court of Northern Illinois.

Johnson's appeal was from the lower Court's refusal to sustain a writ of habeas corpus by which the pugilist sought to test the constitutionality of the Mann act in violation of which Johnson was charged with transporting in interstate commerce Belle Schreiber from Pittsburg to Chicago.

The Supreme Court held that a person was not entitled to raise the constitutionality of a law on habeas corpus unless all other means of testing its validity had been exhausted. Meanwhile, the Court pointed out, Johnson had been released on bail.

The Court did not pass on the constitutionality of the law.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—As a result of the Supreme Court's action in dismissing Jack Johnson's appeal, District Attorney Wilkerson said today the cases against the negro pugilist would be tried immediately.

DENIES HE'S A BIGAMIST

Maplewood Contractor Arraigned, Returned to Jail.

Robert Bishop, a building contractor of Maplewood, was arraigned Monday before Judge Wurdeman at Clayton and pleaded not guilty to a charge of bigamy, preferred by Eva Mettleship Bishop, also a resident of Maplewood. In default of $1000 bond, Bishop was returned to jail, where he had been since his arrest Saturday.

The information against Bishop was issued Jan. 18. The complainant said she had learned that Bishop, with whom she eloped Nov. 13, was married in 1907 to Callie Hartley of Alton, and was not divorced from her. Bishop, according to a statement from his attorney, asserts that he believed his former wife had obtained a divorce.

KORTJOHN FAVORS SWEEPING CHANGE IN ELECTION LAW

Report to Governor Asks That Legislature Be Sent to Look Over the Field.

Henry W. Kortjohn Jr., chairman of the Board of Election Commissioners, in his annual report sent Monday to Gov. Major, recommended that a committee from the Legislature be sent to St. Louis to investigate and revise the election laws applicable to St. Louis, with a view to making alterations, corrections, and necessary additions.

He recommends that the ballots on election days be counted by experts and atbulated by accountants, and that the judges and clerks who have served through the day be relieved of that duty. If this procedure is followed it will do away, in Kortjohn's opinion, with errors and miscounts such as have recently been revealed in the Gill-Dyer congressional contest.

Some of the Recommendations.

Among other recommendations made are:

That the Board of Election Commissioners be empowered to compel the attendance of judges and clerks of election to undergo an examination as to their qualifications;

That the judges and clerks should be paid by check mailed to them at their homes to relieve them of losing time going to the city hall for their pay;

That the penalties for violation of election laws be made more specific and be made more severe than a misdemeanor;

That the board should be empowered to transfer voters when they move their residences, at any time of the year;

That the printing of lists of registered voters be eliminated;

That the law be made specific as to whether a voter is disqualified if he has a bet on the election;

That the Board of Election Commissioners be authorized summarily to remove election officials at its discretion.

That the law be made more strict regarding employers who discharge employes who serve as election officials, so that it will cover their discharge if other reasons are assigned as a subterfuge.

That the credentials of watchers and challengers be issued by the election board instead of by the political committees.

That the election board be empowered to appoint a watcher and challenger for each precinct to represent the board.

That the judges and clerks may be compelled to attend meetings to receive instructions as to their duties on election day.

Plan to Save $16,500 Yearly.

That the revision of the registration books may be made by the election board at its office. This, Kortjohn says, will save about $16,500 annually to the city.

That the board be empowered to appoint judges and clerks from outside of the precincts in which they are to serve.

That judges and clerks be compelled to serve for the term for which they are appointed, regardless of their removal from the precinct.

That the board be authorized to set up temporary polling places in the streets or in vacant lots, where proper voting places are not available.

How to Have the Best Cough Syrup and Save $2 by Making It at Home.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take one pint of granulated sugar, add ½ pint of warm water and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you will then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly.

And you will find it the best cough syrup you ever used—even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually stops the most severe cough in 24 hours.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for whooping cough, croup, hoarseness, asthma, chest pains, etc.

ST. LOUIS PORTIA TO WED AND GIVE UP LAW PRACTICE

Miss Nattie Greensfelder Surprises Her Friends by Announcement of Engagement.

W. E. EBERT WINS SUIT

She Went to Court by Day, but Electrical Engineer Went to Court at Night.

Miss Hattie Greensfelder, lawyer and member of a prominent and wealthy St. Louis County family, has announced her engagement to marry W. E. Ebert of 3024 Geyer avenue, an electrical engineer.

The announcement occasioned surprise and comment among Miss Greensfelder's friends and professional associates, who believed that she was a confirmed "bachelor girl."

It was thought that Miss Greensfelder was so thoroughly devoted to the practice of law that she had no time to listen to the irrelevant and immaterial pleadings of Cupid.

Practicing Lawyer.

Miss Greensfelder has practiced before the bar in St. Louis and at Clayton. She went to court in the daytime and Ebert went to court at night. The latter proceeding was not entered on the records and those who saw the very business-like woman defending clients in court and heard her quoting Coke and Blackstone did not suspect that she, like most other women, regarded love as a sine qua non and that while apparently engrossed in the study of learned decisions handed down by noted jurists she also was weighing the obiter dicta of a nonlegal suitor, who did not know the difference between a res adjudicata and a non sequitur.

"Mr. Ebert is not a lawyer," said Miss Greensfelder to a Post-Dispatch reporter Monday. "He is an engineer, though. He told me that his scientific training would enable him to show me how to walk a straight line. In reply to this, I told him that my legal education would make it possible for me to lay down the law to him."

Miss Greensfelder says she will give up her profession when she marries. The ceremony will be in the early spring.

The bride-to-be has not sought to pose as a mannish woman, but she has frequently appeared in court wearing a sack coat cut on masculine lines. Her habit of appearing on the streets of Clayton without a hat in all kinds of weather has caused some of her friends to call her "Hatless Hattie."

Fiance Came Here for Fair.

Miss Greensfelder is 28 years old and Ebert is several years her senior. She is the daughter of M. B. Greensfelder, who has a large and valuable estate four miles west of Clayton. Greensfelder and his brother, J. B. Greensfelder, both served long terms as Justice of the Peace at Clayton.

Ebert came to St. Louis to take charge of the German Government's engineering exhibit at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in 1904. He remained here after the fair and established himself in the electrical engineering and inspection business.

NEGRO DETECTIVE ENDS HIS LIFE WITH POISON

T. L. Scott Feared He Would Lose His Mind and Worried About His Work.

Thomas L. Scott, 43 years old, a negro detective, who has been connected with the police department five years, ended his life Monday at his home, 4256A Cote Brilliante avenue by drinking carbolic acid. He awakened his wife at 7 a. m. and told her he had just taken poison. She called a physician, but Scott was dead in a few minutes.

According to Mrs. Scott, her husband feared he was losing his mind. This caused him to neglect his work, and Sunday Chief of Detectives Allender directed Scott to make a written report on a case several days delayed. This also worried him, and when he went home Sunday afternoon he told his wife he feared he would be summoned before the Police Board and lose his job.

One time when Scott was sent into a negro neighborhood to arrest a woman he fund she was a white person. He told her he had made a mistake and then telephoned to headquarters to send a white policeman.

ADMIRAL'S DAUGHTER NUN

Miss Frances Potts to Be Taken Into Carmelite Convent.

Miss Potts entered on her novitiate in November, 1911, and three months later took the white veil, which was followed by a year's probation. She will be formally taken into the order in Baltimore Feb. 11.

PARCEL POST ADDS $50,000 TO INCOME HERE IN JANUARY

Receipts of $60,000 More in Month Than Last Year Are Taken In.

The first month of the parcel post has increased the receipts of the St. Louis postoffice, according to Postmaster Akins, by about $50,000. The increase for January, 1913, over the same month last year was $60,000. The postmaster attributes only $10,000 of this to the natural increase, basing his estimate upon the fact that the entire increase for January of last year was but $6000.

Supt. Michener admitted that post office inspectors are here from Washington making a general investigation of the St. Louis Postoffice. He stated that it is because Postmaster Akins has asked for a larger force of men here to handle the mails.

An increase in the force was requested in December, Minchner said, and some additional men were put on, but still more were needed, and a request for more men was made in January. It is customary, he stated, for inspectors to investigate the general business of a postoffice when such requests are made, to see just what may be required.

The Post-Dispatch recently published expressions from local business men complaining that the mails are not distributed so as to facilitate the conduct of business and asking for an improved service.

When asked if the new act of Congress, requiring that post office employes shall perform eight hours' work a day within a 10-hour period, which is to go into effect March 4, will materially change the schedule of collecting and delivering mails in St. Louis, Superintendent of Mails Minchner replied:

"The notion that distribution of mails between the hours of 3 and 5 in the afternoon will have to be suspended is erroneous. There will be some changes, but these will not affect the business district at all.

"The changes will affect the residential sections to some extent. For instance, if you mail a letter downtown before 1 p. m. now, it will be delivered in the residence section the same afternoon, but after the new law goes into effect the schedules must be so arranged that unless you mail your letter before 12 noon it cannot be delivered until the next morning."

REVIVALIST IS STRICKEN DEAD IN MIDST OF WORK

Is Cut Down on Way to Renew Services After Seeming in Strong Health.

TROY, Mo., Feb. 3.—The Rev. Charles Lynch, pastor of the Troy Methodist Church, died suddenly Saturday evening as the result of a stroke of apoplexy.

For the past two weeks he had been conducting a big revival meeting at the Methodist Church here, and the revival was at its height when the Rev. Mr. Lynch left home at 7:15 o'clock after eating a hearty supper to conduct the regular evening service. When half way to the church he fell unconscious to the sidewalk. He was picked up by members of his congregation on their way to services and was taken home.

Physicians were summoned and he regained consciousness long enough to recognize members of his family and tell them good-by. But it was only for a brief period.

The Rev. Theodore Copeland, D. D., of St. Louis, was assisting the Rev. Mr. Lynch in the revival.

Lynch was 48 years of age and leaves besides his wife and four children here a grown son in Maryland. He had been pastor of the church here two years, coming from the Virginia conferance at that time. The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Copeland, who is a boyhood friend of the deceased. Burial will be in the Troy Cemetery.

SUSPECT AN IMPOSTOR "TOUCHED" HIM FOR $15

Milton Mill Says Man Told Him He Was Mill's Employer's Nephew on Honeymoon.

Believing he was deceived into giving $15 to an impostor, Milton Mill of 6007 Berlin avenue Monday asked the police to inquire into the matter. Mill said he received a visit about 9 p. m., Jan. 27, at his home, from a young man who introduced himself as a nephew of A. B. Dana, president of the Chicago Fuse Co., which Mill represents here.

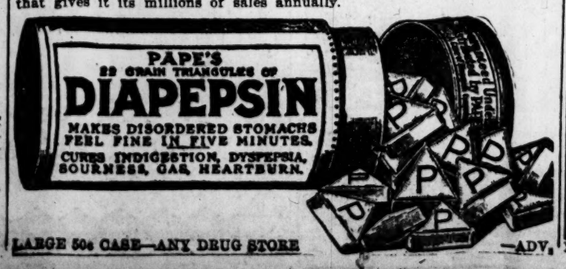

"I am on my honeymoon," said the young man, according to Mill, "and while traveling from Chicago here was robbed of my money and jewelry. I want $15 until morning."

Mill said he handed over the money. He has not heard from the man since and thinks the man's "quick touch" story was false and that he was an impostor.

SAYS ONE JUDGE COUNTED ENTIRE PRECINCT BALLOT

Republican Official in Ward 5, Precinct 5, Asserts Same Man Helped Illiterates.

That Edward Skropsky, a Democratic judge of elections, "fixed up" all the ballots for illiterate voters and counted, unaided, all the votes cast in the fifth precinct of the Fifth Ward, last election day, was the testimony of John J. Ralph Monday at a hearing in the contest between Michael J. Gill, Democrat, and Leonidas C. Dyer, Republican, for Dyer's seat in Congress from the Twelfth District of Missouri.

Ralph lives at 810A Morgan street and was a Republican judge at the fifth precinct polling place, 910 Franklin avenue, he testified.

Many men, who said they could not read or write English, voted in the precinct, Ralph said. In accordance with the law, some of them were sworn, Ralph testified, but the oath was administered in English, and was not interpreted.

Heard Dyer and Kiel Mentioned.

Charles Rizzo and Frank Pahxia, challengers, talked with the Italian voters in their native tongue and then instructed Skropsky to "go ahead and fix it up," Ralph said. The frequent repetition of the names of Dyer and Kiel, Ralph said, indicated to him that Rizzo and Pahxia were instructing the Democratic voters to vote for the Republicans. Ralph testified that he saw the names of Dyer and Kiel written in the place of those of Gill and Dickmann on some of the ballots.

The witness said he had to object frequently, to keep Skropsky from going into the booths with voters. When asked who prepared the ballots for illiterate Republican voters, Ralph replied: "No Republicans asked for help in voting."

When the polls were closed, Ralph said, all the ballots were piled on the table together and Skropsky alone counted them. The other judges and the clerks, he said, merely kept tally sheets and counted the names as Skropsky called them off.

The original count of votes in that precinct gave Dyer 186 and Gill 23. After the recount, Dyer's vote was reduced to 147 and Gill's increased to 51.

"Straight" Ballots Scratched.

Andrew Walker of 906 Morgan street, Edward F. Kelly of 921 North Ninth street, and Walter Wood of 901 North Eighth street, testified that they voted the Democratic ticket without scratching a name. Gill's name was scratched from all three ballots, it was found at the recount.

Edward Johnson of 912 North Tenth street, testified that Pahxia met him at the door of the polling place and asked him how he was going to vote. "I told him it was none of his business," Johnson said.

Europe's Biggest Railway Station Open.

BERLIN, Feb. 3.—The new railway depot at Leipzig, the largest in Europe, was opened Saturday night in Leipzig. It is near the border of Prussia, and state prejudices are still evident in the new station. Only Prussian porters are permitted to carry luggage from Prussian trains and only Saxon porters from Saxon trains.

NEW JOY RIDING AUTO LAW HOLDS THREE YOUTHS

Young Men Arrested After Stolen Machine Had Been Found Wrecked.

Three youths arrested Sunday, charged with driving away and dismantling an automobile owned by J. M. Ebeling, a commission merchant, probably will be the first to be tried in St. Louis under the new Missouri law making it a felony to drive away an automobile belonging to another. The men, after their arrest, made confessions admitting they destroyed the car after joy-riding several hours, according to Capt. Hess of the Dayton Street Police Court, where they are held.

They are John Jones, 17 years old, a chauffeur, 2409 North Twenty-third street; Henry Kuhn, 19, 2547 Dodier street, and Martin Schabb, 22, 2236 Gaines street. A part of the machinery and equipment of the destroyed auto was recovered by the police from the men's rooms.

Ebeling, who lives at 3521 Hebert street, left his auto in front of the Elks' Club, 3617 Lindell avenue, Saturday night. It was stolen at 1 a. m. Sunday. The police found the framework of the dismantled machine at 9 a. m., on the Bellefontaine road, a quarter of a mile outside of the city limits. The car had been hammered to pieces, damaging it $1000, the police say, and machinery and equipment valued at $250 had been carried away.

Patrolman Evoy of the Dayton Street District met Jones and Kuhn at Leffingwell avenue and Gamble street Sunday at 7 a. m. They were carrying three inner tubes, an outer auto tire, an auto meter and several other parts of equipment. Evoy questioned the youths, and when they gave unsatisfactory answers he arrested them.

Capt. Hess examined the young men, and says they admitted taking the machine from the Elks Club and breaking it up after they had ridden several hours in St. Louis and East St. Louis.

A part of the broken machinery was found in Schaab's room, and other appliances were recovered in a room at the home of Jones' brother at 2030 Franklin avenue.

BOY'S "MYSTERY BOX" A TORPEDO; 4 CHILDREN HURT

Treasure Kept Two Days as Surprise to Little Relatives, Explodes When Pounded.

FOUND NEAR A HOSPITAL

Explosive Signal Believed to Have Belonged to Visitor at Railway Institution.

For two days Harry Smith, 11 years old, of 2820 Park avenue, carried a mystery box in his pocket, ignoring the pleadings of his playmates at the Hodgen school that he open it.

Harry found the mystery box Friday on the sidewalk in front of the Missouri Pacific Hospital and kept it as a surprise for his little cousin, Mildred Bartlett, 8 years old, and his other cousin, Raymond Roth, 7 years old, both of Maplewood, who came to visit him and his brother, Cletus, 8 years old, Sunday.

"Oh, Harry's got something," whispered Mildred to Raymond and Cletus when Harry showed the mystery box to her first.

Attempts to Pound It Open.

Later they all tip-toed softly out of the house down to the street corner where they could investigate the strange little object at leisure.

"You can't pull it open," said Harry as he laid it on the sidewalk and began to hammer it with a stone.

The four children crowded close as Harry pounded the box with the stone. Then there was an explosion and little Raymond rolled screaming on the sidewalk with a wound below the knee of his left leg. Harry's leg was scorched and the hands of Cletus and Mildred were burned.

Dr. W. F. Bennett, 2815 Park avenue, heard the screams of the children. On the sidewalk near Raymond, the most seriously hurt, the doctor found one-half of a tin railroad torpedo. The other half he later picked from the lining of Harry's coat, where it had lodged.

Effort to Prevent Blood Poison.

Dr. Bennett said Monday that Raymond was the only child seriously injured. He administered anti-toxin to him to prevent blood poison.

It is thought that the torpedo was lost or thrown away by some visitor or patient at the Missouri Pacific Hospital.

CHILDREN WALKING TWO MILES TO REACH SCHOOL

Lindenwood Citizens Form Association to Get Better Educational Facilities.

Citizens living in Lindenwood, a section in the southwest district of St. Louis, have organized a benevolent association, with the purpose of obtaining better school facilities for their children. They complain that the pupils are compelled to walk from one to two miles to reach the Longfellow School in Gratiot, and have petitioned the school board to supply at least a portable schoolhouse in Lindenwood.

H. E. Babbitt, secretary of the association, told a Post-Dispatch reporter last night that there are 142 children in Lindenwood of an age to attend the first three grades of the common schools, and that, as it is impossible for them to return home at noon, they are compelled to eat their luncheons in the basement of the Longfellow School, in a room adjoining the wash rooms.

"Lindenwood has no school whatsoever," said A. W. Rhein of 7099 Mardel avenue, "and our children are compelled to walk the greater part of two miles to the Longfellow School in Gratiot."

Rhein added that many others are refusing to send their children to the Longfellow School, and that, although some of them have been kept at home for two weeks, the truant officer, active in other parts of the city, never has protested.

WIFE KILLING, ACCIDENT

Coroner's Jury So Finds in Case of Arthur G. Chavis.

A verdict of accident was found Monday by a Coroner's jury in the case of Mrs. Katherine Chavis, who was shot and killed Saturday night with a revolver in the hands of her husband, Arthur G. Chavis, at their home, 3217 Hickory street.

Neighbors testified that the couple lived happily together, and their 9-year-old daughter, Eleanor, also testified that there was no family trouble. Chavis told the jury he was showing his wife how to use the revolver, and had taken out all the cartridges but one, when he inadvertently pulled the trigger, causing the fatal wound in her neck.

Annual Statement of the Mutual Life Company.

In its annual statement published Monday in all the principal cities of the country, the Mutual Life Insurance Co. shows that it has paid in the past year to policy holders and their beneficiaries $80,965,488, more than a million dollars a week. This amount exceeds that paid in 1911 by more than three and one-half millions of dollars.

All records paid to policy holders were broken in 1912, by a cash payment of $15,006,280, while for 1913 it has appropriated $17,368,046.

On real estate and securities sold the company realized a net profit of $2,047,-219. The company's book value of real estate holdings amounts to $23,582,623. The cash on hand at the end of the year was only $2,196,142, so closely are the funds of the company held to investments.

$175,000 Fire in Publishing House.

DES MOINES, Io., Feb. 3.—Fire starting in the electric foundry partially destroyed the Homestead Publishing Co.'s four-story building here early today. Estimated damage is $175,000, covered by insurance.

CHILDREN INJURED BY A RAILWAY TORPEDO

TWO YOUTHS STABBED IN FIGHT OUTSIDE THEATER

They Fail to Identify Prisoner Who Confesses, Saying He Acted in Self Defense.

Although neither Owen McGaughey, 18 years old, stenographer, of 730 North Euclid avenue, nor William Barry, 19, 5927 North Market street, could identify Rudolph Astl, 18, 2469 Emerson avenue, as the man who stabbed them outside the Union Theater, Union and Easton avenues, at 10 p. m. Sunday, the police say Astl has confessed the stabbing.

McCaughey received a 10-inch gash on the left side of his face, was cut on the right elbow and was stabbed in the left shoulder. He was sent to the city hospital in a serious condition. Barry was slightly cut on the back of the head.

A dispute in the theater among a number of young men ended in a fight outside. Astl says he acted in self-defense.

Killed in Holdup at Home.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 3.—Capt. Ralph E. Byrne, 64, a retired lake steamer captain, was shot and killed by two thieves here as he and his wife entered their home on their return from church.

H. F. HENWOOD, VON PHUL'S SLAYER, GETS NEW TRIAL

He Pleaded That Copeland, Shot When Von Phul Was Slain, Was Killed Accidentally.

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 3.—The Colorado Supreme Court today granted a new trial to Harold F. Henwood, convicted in the District Court more than a year ago on a charge of murder in connection with the shooting of George F. Copeland of Cripple Creek, in the barroom of the Brown Palace Hotel.

In the trial it was shown the Copeland shooting was accidental and that L. von Phul, St. Louis amateur balloonist, who was killed, was the target for Henwood's bullet. Henwood still is awaiting trial on the charge of shooting Von Phul.

Quarrel Over Millionaire's Wife.

The shooting in the barroom of the Brown Palace Hotel at Denver, the morning of May 25, 1911, was the result of a dispute between Von Phul and Henwood over Mrs. Isabelle Springer Patterson, who was at that time the wife of John W. Springer, millionaire president of the Continental Trust Co.

The men had quarreled in the grill room of the hotel and Von Phul had knocked Henwood down. When the quarrel was resumed in the barroom, Henwood drew a revolver and began shooting. A stray bullet from his revolver struck George E. Copeland, a bystander, inflicting a wound from which Copeland died. Henwood is under a sentence of life imprisonment for killing Copeland.

Mrs. Springer was known as the most beautiful woman in Denver, and Henwood and Von Phul became infatuated with her. The rivalry for her favor gradually became more intense, and threats were exchanged by the men for several days prior to the shooting.

Both Amateur Aeronauts.

Von Phul, member of an old and wealthy St. Louis family, was an aeronaut of note, having figured in some of the most important balloon races. Henwood, a traveling salesman from New York, also was an amateur aeronaut.

After the shooting Springer filed a divorce suit and obtained a decree without opposition. It was said that he gave the family jewels and $15,000 to his wife after the divorce, on condition that she promise to leave Denver and never return. The District Attorney at Denver also released her from a subpena for her appearance at the trial of Henwood for shooting Von Phul, leaving her to be governed entirely by her own feelings as to whether she should testify.

HUSBAND TIRED OF SEEING HER SUFFER

Procured Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which made His Wife a Well Woman.

"I had headache, backache and such awful pains that I could not be on my feet at times and I had organic inflammation so badly that I was not able to do my work. I could not get a good meal for my husband and one child. My neighbors said they thought my suffering was terrible. "My husband got tired of seeing me suffer and one night went to the drug store and got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told me I must take it. I can't tell you all I suffered and I can't tell you all that your medicine has done for me. I was greatly benefited from the first and it has made me a well woman. I can do all my housework and even helped some of my friends as well. I think it is a wonderful help to all suffering women. I have got several to take it after seeing what it has done for me."—Mrs. EMMA ESPENSHADE, 219 East Main st., Middletown, Pa.

The Pinkham record is a proud and honorable one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of women—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

BALKAN WAR IS SCHEDULED TO BE RESUMED TONIGHT

Turkey, However, Hopes Germany and Britain Will Prevent New Hostilities.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The Balkan War will begin again at 7 o'clock this evening, unless the last peace efforts of the Powers should succeed or Turkey decide at the eleventh hour to surrender.

It even has been decided who shall fire the first shot, as Turkey has stated that she will allow her adversaries to take the aggressive.

The immediate object of the armies of the allies is the capture of Adrianople, which hitherto has presented a firm front to its besiegers. On this fortress the combined Bulgarian and Servian armies, the latter well supplied with siege artillery, will concentrate their exertions. For the present, at any rate, the Bulgarian generals simply will try to hold the Turkish troops at Tchatalja.

King Nicholas of Montenegro already has started again for the Turkish fortress of Scutari. The King will take the direction of the renewed attack.

In the Western Turkish province of Epirus, which touches the Grecian border, the Greek troops, under the command of Crown Prince Constantine, have great hopes of breaking down the splendid defense which the Turkish army has offered.

Dr. Daneff, head of the Bulgarian delegation, before leaving London, recalled what he had said in his first statements on arriving in London that the Balkan peoples, who had adapted the Monroe doctrine to their peninsula, aspired to become the Americans of Europe. They had adopted a policy of sincerity and straightforwardness, as was proved by their frank conduct in the peace conference, where they demanded from the first exactly what they intended to take, against double-dealing on the part of the Turks.

Turkey Hopes German and British Note Will Prevent Fighting.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 3.—The outcome of the representations made by the British and German ministers at the Bulgarian capital was awaited here today with anxiety. Although the armistice was scheduled to end at 7 o'clock in the evening, the Ottoman officials had not yet lost hope that a resumption of hostilities would be avoided.

The German communication to Bulgaria was even more direct in its terms than was that of Great Britain in urging a peaceful settlement. Germany declared she considered the new Turkish proposals as adequate, while both Great Britain and Germany intimated that intractability on the part of the Balkan nations was not approved by the Powers. Meanwhile Turkey has not been neglecting precautions for any outcome. The movement of troops and war stores have been incessant in the last week, while the hospitals at the front have been cleared and their patients removed to the infirmaries in this city.

The Turkish Government, like that of Bulgaria, will not allow newspaper correspondents to accompany the armies in the field. Mahmoud Shefket Pasha, the Grand Vizier, stated emphatically today that he would not allow any correspondents within 20 miles of the lines.

CALVE IN TABLOID OPERA.

At the Shubert Theater Sunday afternoon, Mme. Emma Calve and Galileo Gasparri gave a tabloid grand opera performance, with scenery and costumes, before a representative audience. The two famous stars, supported by M. Emiliano Renaud, pianist, appeared in a concert presenting scenes from "Carmen" and "Cavalleria Rusticana."

Both Mme. Calve and Gasparri were in fine voice, and, although the prima donna has grown somewhat stouter of late, she is the same "Carmen" as in the old days, when she used to set her audiences wild with enthusiasm. Gasparri was at his best as Don Jose. Besides possessing an excellent tenor voice, rich in tone and quality, he is also a finished actor.

Mme. Calve still retains her wonderful magnetism. In "Carmen" the one scene is laid at the entrance to the arena. Here she sees her own death forecast by the playing cards and meets her end with strong dramatic effect.

M. Renaud shared in the honors by his masterful piano solos. He is finished in his art, but has none of the eccentric characteristics, often so prominent in musical geniuses.

OLD CHEROKEE GARDEN CLOSES AFTER 60 YEARS

Historic Club House Will Be Torn Down, Amusement Palace to Replace It.

Cherokee Garden, Cherokee street and Iowa avenue, home of the Cherokee Club, and for more than half a century the gathering place of politicians, business men and bon vivants, closed its doors and went out of business Sunday night. The Cherokee Club, which in former times had 600 members, voted to disband and its affairs will be closed up.

Lack of interest in the club by the younger generation, and the formation of other clubs which decreased the membership, was the cause of the ending of the older society. The historic clubhouse will be torn down and will be replaced with an amusement palace, swimming pool, dance hall and bowling alley. The property was sold last fall by Henry Besch, whose family had owned the resort since it was opened 60 years ago, to Harry and Eugene Freund, who are financing the new amusement resort.

BILL PASSED FOR WITNESS FEES FOR POLICEMEN

Measure Will Give $50,000 a Year to the Relief Fund, It Is Estimated.

By J. J. McAULIFFE, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

POST-DISPATCH BUREAU, JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 3.—The St. Louis Police Relief Association has scored heavily today through the passage of a bill by the House providing that policemen shall receive witness fees in all cases in courts of record; also in all municipal or city police courts, at Coroner's inquests and in justice or police courts.

According to the statement of a St. Louis representative to the Post-Dispatch correspondent, the Police Relief Association, to which the fees so collected are to be given, will profit to the extent of not less than $50,000 a year.

The bill was introduced by Representative Kennedy of Kansas City, to which city it also applies. It was put over as a local measure and members who voted for it say they did so because there was no opposition from the large cities effected by the bill.

Bills providing increases in salaries for sergeants, patrolmen and turnkeys in St. Louis and adding to the detective force and other branches of the St. Louis Police Department are before the Committee on Municipal Corporations.

Representative Lloyd of St. Louis is leading the fight against the salary amendment, consideration of which he says ought to be deferred for two years.

VINOL HELPS OLD PEOPLE

Here Is Proof That It Creates Strength.

So many cases like this are constantly coming to our attention that we publish it for the benefit of others:—Mrs. James McCormick of Cohoes, N. Y., says: "My mother is an elderly lady and after having pneumonia she did not seem to recover her strength. She was so weak it was about as much as she could do to get from her room into the living room. Her strength seemed to be all gone. I commenced to give her Vinol and in less than a week she was like a new woman. She had regained her strength so she could get around anywhere."

It is the medicinal curative elements of the cod livers without oil aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron which are contained in Vinol that makes it so efficient in such cases.

If you have an aged father, mother or anyone in your family who needs a strength-creating tonic, try Vinol on our offer to give back your money if it fails to benefit. Chester Kent & Co., Chemists. For sale by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Smoke is nothing but unconsumed fuel. Hence it is absolute and profligate waste. Every time you see black columns of smoke issuing from your smoke stack, you know you are burning up money. The sooner you look into this subject the better for your pocketbook, your piece of mind and your neighborhood.

The remedy, of course, is the Kewanee Smokeless Firebox Boiler. It prevents smoke. It consumes all the fuel and gases and turns them into heat. Therefore it is economical and saves you approximately 23 per cent on your fuel bill. The smokeless boiler is not exactly new. It is a combination of two time-tried principles—the down draft furnace and the Kewanee Firebox Boiler—both known and approved by all first-class heating and ventilating engineers.

We are the pioneers in combining these two principles and the results we have achieved prove that there is no sense at all in having any smoke anywhere at any time. You can obey the law for less money than you can violate it. Any time you are right, the law can't touch you. And with this combination, you are right.

U. S., AMAZED AT BULGARS, ORDERS ARMY REARRANGED

Plan Formed by Secretary Stimson Provides for Rapid Mobilization of Forces.

TRAIN IN PEACE TIMES

Infantry and Cavalry Divisions to Be Formed, With Men Responsible for Their Movements.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The mobilization of the Bulgarian army and the dash into Turkish territory, all in 18 days, startled the United States military heads into drafting plans for a complete reorganization of the American fighting force. Secretary of War Stimson has announced the first steps of this reorganization. They are:

The creation out of the mobile army in continental United States of three infantry divisions and a cavalry division.

The creation of an infantry brigade in Hawaii.

The plan of reorganization, drafted by the war college, was the subject of discussion by the general officers of the army at a four-day session last month.

Stimson Discusses Plans.

"Hitherto there has been no tactical army organization higher than a regiment," Secretary Stimson said. "There has been no brigade or division, excepting in time of peace. Upon the outbreak of war, when an army was needed, it has been necessary to create such an army under all the stress and hurry and excitement of such an occasion. And when that army was created under such circumstances, it was an army which had never before served together and whose officers had had no opportunity in time of peace to get acquainted with their commands, their subordinates and their superiors.

"The present plan creates three infantry divisions and one cavalry division within the limits of the United States. Each infantry division consists of two or three brigades, with a proper proportion of divisioned artillery, cavalry, engineers and other military troops. The cavalry division consists of two cavalry brigades, and there is in addition a third (detached) cavalry brigade. The order also creates a brigade of infantry in Hawaii.

"At the head of each division and, so far as possible, at the head of each brigade will be placed a different officer. He will be responsible for the tactical training of his command and for that purpose will be relieved, so far as possible, of the pressure of routine administrative work, which, under the former system, has proved such an obstacle to drill and training.

Training for Each Brigade.

"During the time of peace these officers will have an opportunity to become thoroughly acquainted with the organization, men and officers, under their command. Although the organization will, as long as our system of scattered posts continues, be scattered and separated, it will be the duty of its officers to visit, inspect and supervise the training of all its elements, so far as possible; and so often as the necessary funds are provided by Congress, these brigades and divisions will be maneuvered together, either alone or in conjunction with the National Guard. During the time of peace it will be the duty of such commander to make all of the plans and preparations necessary to mobilize his force in case of war.

"The importance of this single phase of the reform can be appreciated when it is remembered that in 1911 it required 16 days to create, gather together and mobilize a single division of 12,000 men at San Antonio, Tex. In 1912, it required the Bulgarians only 18 days, or two days more, to mobilize an army of approximately 270,000 men, to cross their enemy's border and beat into hopeless ruin the Turkish army.

"To carry on the necessary administrative work connected with the military establishment of the United States, the country has been divided by this order into four geographical departments—an Eastern, Central, Western and Southern department, with headquarters respectively: at Governor's Island, Chicago, San Francisco and San Antonio. One army division will be situated in each of these departments, the cavalry division being in the Southern department.

Coast Artillery Divisions.

"In addition there are established three districts for the coast artillery troops, one on the North Atlantic, another on the South Atlantic, and a third on the Pacific coast. A separate officer with the rank, if possible, of a general officer, will be placed in command of each of these coast artillery districts, and he will be responsible for the training, discipline and instruction of the coast artillery troops under his command.

"Taken as a whole, I regard the new organization as a very long step forward. It not only represents a great immediate reform in the structure of the army, but it paves the way for constant, rational improvement."

In creating this organization the executive has gone as far as his constitutional powers permit in the direction of the creation of a complete, well-balanced and concentrated army. Any further coordination and assembling of troops into stations and locations sufficiently near one another to afford proper opportunities for drill can only be taken on the appropriation of sufficient funds for that purpose by Congress.

The couple came from Newark, N. J., a few days ago and the husband had searched in vain for work.

BABY A SIGHT WITH ECZEMA

Mother Thought He Couldn't Be Worse. Resinol Acted Like a Charm.

"I wish you could have seen my baby before I started to use Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment, and see him now. He is now one year old, and the eczema started when he was about a month old. I was ashamed to let anyone see him, his little head was a sight. I thought he would never have any hair on his head at all. I used ——— remedies for about five months.

"Then I thought I would try Resinol Soap and Ointment. I thought the child couldn't be any worse! I got the samples all right, and I tell you they acted like a charm. I used Resinol Soap and Ointment for about two months; I saw a change from the first application. Now he is as pretty as a picture, and his hair has come in beautiful and curly." (Signed) Mrs. M. Whiteley, 797 Hunterdon street, Newark, N. J., Sept 6, 1912.

Is your little one suffering from any such distressing trouble? Then how can you fail to profit by Mrs. Whiteley's experience? Even in such a terrible stubborn case, Resinol brought prompt relief. It is ready to do as much for you. Resinol Ointment and Soap are sold by all druggists, or you can try them free by writing for samples to Dept. 8-T, Resinol Chem. Co., Baltimore, Md.

'SILVER WEDDING' IS A WEAK DRAMA WITH SHAKY BASE

Story Founded on a Puerile Grudge the Consequence of Which Lack Plausibility.

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS.

IF "The Silver Wedding," which received its first production on any stage at the Shubert Theater on Sunday evening, develops into a success, such a result will be most largely due to the clever work of Thomas A. Wise and Alice Gale, with Edna Aug a good third in helping to score the achievement.

Miss Aug, who is featured with Mr. Wise in the play's billing, would rank more prominently as a factor for its survival in the theater if opportunity were given her. As it is, in the role of Frieda Hachradt, a housemaid in the simple German-American home of Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Koehler in a western Pennsylvania village, she has merely a "character-bit" for her playing. She does the most that can be done with this part, but that most is little indeed.

Edward Locke, author of "The Case of Becky" and "The Climax," has not written a strong play in "The Silver Wedding." The compelling motive of all its action is a petty resentment cherished by old Ludwig Koehler, the town saddle-maker, against George Eckhardt, a young drug clerk in love with his daughter, which leads Koehler to make all sorts of trouble for the young couple and very nearly wreck his own domestic happiness for his trivial mood's sake.

This plot-basis is so essentially weak that it destroys the story's plausibility at all moments. It forbids anything like reasonable credence concerning the incidents that follow the development of the puerile grudge, born of the older man's belief that the younger had referred to him as "a pig-headed Dutchman."

One simply refuses to accept as real a drama so insecurely founded, and, as a result, one's interest in the story itself becomes a negligible quantity.

The rewardful feature of Mr. Locke's latest effort is found in its presentation of the homely German-American character-types encountered in a section of Pennsylvania largely peopled by German immigrants.

Mr. Wise and Miss Gale are finely truthful and humorous as Ludwig Koehler and his good wife, the leaders of this group, both revealing the sure touch of nature in their portrayals. Edna Aug, as I have just said, makes the most of the Frieda role. Richard Malchien as Dr. Klotz, Siegfried Schultz as Parson Rehbein, Bratton Kennedy as Heinie Schmidt, in love with Frieda; Paul Albert as Hans Weighart, Frances Nelson as Martha Koehler, old Ludwig's daughter, and John McCowan in the Portuguese dialect part of Juan Jacinta, the village barber, give a good account of themselves.

The play itself, contemplated as drama, is the point of weakness. An additional element of peril is found in the fact that many of its lines are spoken in German, to the great bafflement of a large proportion of any average audience in this country.

There is much good "character comedy" in the offering. Whenever this happened to be in progress of development, the audience seemed to enjoy the play. The story itself didn't hold anyone's interest for a moment.

STRONG EMOTIONAL DRAMA AT GARRICK.

If you go to the Garrick during the next two weeks to see "A Butterfly on the Wheel," don't permit yourself to become annoyed if you find the first act a trifle "talky" and its incidents somewhat meager.

Just remember that the drama concerns the catastrophe an unthinking, but wholly good and innocent, social butterfly brings upon herself by her inability to conceive of the evil interpretation of the world, and particularly, her husband will put upon a situation that has arisen through no fault of her own. To develop her character so that the auditor will fully understand her attitude in the later scenes, a great deal of otherwise commonplace dialogue is introduced.

She is married to a man much her senior. His mind is occupied with great business and political affairs to the point of neglect for her. Two false friends, one a youth near her own years who wants to marry her, and the other an older woman who wants her husband, connive at a scheme, by which her husband traps her and the other man in a Paris hotel where they spend the night.

Everything is really proper, but the evidence looks damning. Just then, the butterfly begins to wake up, and she unconsciously plays into the plotters hands by agreeing to lie to her husband. The frank truth would have satisfied him, but the lie convinces him of her guilt.

He sues for a divorce, and in the great courtroom scene that follows the frivolous wife is put on the wheel of a cruel and insinuating cross-examination and all but broken on it. This trial scene is one of the greatest achievements in playwriting in recent years. Though its setting is thoroughly English, it goes unerringly across the footlights and grips the hearts of the audience, moving them to profound pity for the irresponsible creature, whose wings are broken on the merciless wheel of convention.

For 40 minutes Stanley Warmington, as chief counsel for the husband, and the accused wife carry the dialogue practically alone and there is not a second when the audience is not keyed to the highest pitch. Warmington is the idealization of the English barrister. Miss Dorothy Lane as the wife is better in the lighter than in the sterner moments of her role, but her performance withal is convincing. Hamilton Deane as Lord Ellerdine, a frank and silly ass, is the greatest individual hit of the performance. It is a thoroughly English company, with the usual English thoroughness in its work.

FINE RIVALRY FOR HONORS IN COUNT OF LUXEMBOURG

Principals, Chorus and Orchestra Vie in Splendid and Spirited Production.

PLAYGOER'S GUIDE.

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS.

"The Silver Wedding," with Thomas A. Wise and Edna Aug. Shubert. First time on any stage. Play tells homely story of German-American life in a Western Pennsylvania village. Lacks dramatic strength, but its character-types are well portrayed by Mr. Wise, Miss Aug, Alice Gale and others.

"The Count of Luxembourg." Olympic. Franz Lehar's successful musical comedy. Original New Amsterdam Theater, New York, company and production. Splendidly staged and notable for the uniform excellence of principals, chorus and orchestra.

"A Butterfly on the Wheel." Garrick. A powerful emotional drama, climaxing in a gripping courtroom scene showing the merciless cross-examination of an innocent wife wrongfully charged with unfaithfulness to her husband. Strongly played by an excellent company.

Charlotte Walker in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine." Century. Return engagement of Eugene Walter's picturesque dramatization of John Fox Jr.'s dramatic story of feud war in the Southern mountains. Excellently played by star and supporting company.

"The Divorce Question." American. A well constructed and deeply interesting drama, its logical moral a condemnation of divorce. Admirably played by an effectively cast company.

"A Girl of the Underworld." La Salle. Heart-interest melodrama of strong situations, its heroine a young woman saved from the lure of an evil life.

Vaudeville. Columbia. Bill headed by Grace La Rue and company in "The Record Breaker."

Vaudeville. Hippodrome. Bill headed by "The Five Stage Door Johnnies."

"High Life in Burlesque." Standard. Burlesque and vaudeville.

The Cracker Jacks. Gayety. Burlesque and vaudeville.

The Klaw & Erlanger original New York production of "The Count of Luxembourg" opened to an unusually well-filled house at the Olympic Sunday evening, and the much-heralded musical romance met with the same responsive enthusiasm that characterized its metropolitan production, when it was reviewed at length in these columns by the Post-Dispatch dramatic editor, then in New York for the season's openings.

The play is notable, not alone for its music, which abounds in solos, duets and choruses, with an exceptionally charming waltz, but the comedy is built upon lines that are intended to cause laughter without blushes. The play itself is worthy to rank with the best of musical comedies, and it is doubtful if any of the new music plays have been given so complete a production.

Ann Swinburne and George Leon Moore are the principals in the romance of the operetta and by virtue of this and the love waltz they become the stars of the play; but Frances Cameron, one of the best "Merry Widows" St. Louis has ever heard, and Frank Moulan, who seems almost a St. Louisan from long association, follow in such lively chase that the singing of haunting love songs and waltzing up and down stairways by the romantic lovers cannot throw them into the background. Honors between the four were fairly even in the opening performance. The rest of the cast is well chosen and the chorus the most charming and best drilled that has been seen in St. Louis this season.

An orchestra of grand opera proportions, under the leadership of Anton Heindl, is one of the most delightful features of the performance, and the two stage settings are masterpieces of stage craft.

The music, already familiar, promises to become more popular, but the staircase waltz, heralded in advance as a big novelty, is not likely to replace the tango or turkey trot. It is too much of the clinging-vine type.

GORDON S. SERVANT.

"THE DIVORCE QUESTION" AT AMERICAN.

Joseph Medill Patterson has met his match in William Anthony McGuire, whose play, "The Divorce Question," at the American Theater this week, is a convincing answer to Patterson's problem novel, "Rebellion."

"Rebellion," it will be remembered, portrayed the kind of family life which is supposed to make divorce necessary because of the misery such life entails on the wife. In Patterson's story, the husband is a drunkard. His shortcomings not only cause his wife sorrow and suffering, but indirectly lead to the death of their little child. The drunkard is carried home in a stupor at the very moment death claims his baby.

And in the play now at the American it is the priest—a splendid type of man and ecclesiastic—who from first to last insists that temporary wrongdoing must not be permitted to wreck a family. The incidents of the play bear him out most powerfully and tragically in this stand. The parents who, for selfish reasons, have been divorced, find that they have, in the consequences of that act, wrecked the lives of their two children. These children, having been given into the keeping of distant relatives, are neglected. The boy runs away, taking with him his sister. He becomes a newsboy and for a time works faithfully for her. But he cannot be with her all the time, and finds, one evening, that she has been kidnaped for immoral purposes. He follows the villain who has done this and shoots him. Pursued by "the gang," he takes refuge with the girl in Father [illegible]'s Church, where it happens that the parents have met by accident.

The parents, thus finding their long lost children, both the irrecoverable victims of poverty and ignorance as well as of parental neglect, are made to see, but it is too late, how a selfish step may bring inconceivable disaster upon those who take it and upon posterity.

The pianos for this co-operative sale were personally selected at the factory by Mr. P. E. Conroy, our President, and upon arrival are being tested and inspected by Mr. Charles Galloway, Conductor of Apollo and Morning Choral Clubs.

One-third of these $248.75 pianos have been sold

Copyright 1912, by Stone & McCarrick, Inc.

TWO WEEKS ago Wednesday we announced this co-operative sale. Today—one third of these pianos (in round figures) have been sold.

We told you then that co-operation was power. This has been fully proved by the instantaneous success of this sale. The success of this sale was assured, however, from the hour it opened—its success lying in the one fact—that the pianos which are being sold through it are worth a lot more money than they are selling for—that they are being offered on the easiest sort of terms and that the co-operative purchasers are given innumerable privileges and advantages which absolutely safeguard their investment.

NOTE: These are the celebrated Marshall & Wendell Pianos and Player-Pianos; an old standard make, made since 1853.

The advantages you obtain through buying a player-piano on this co-operative plan

We want to make these so plain to you that there cannot be the least chance for a misunderstanding.

The first and most important advantage is, these player-pianos sell regularly at an average price of five hundred and fifty dollars each. This co-operative price is a uniform price of three hundred and ninety-five dollars each.

Next—player-pianos such as these are usually sold upon payments of thirty-five to fifty dollars cash and fifteen to twenty dollars a month. →

Under the usual plan of selling, interest is charged for the time taken, when a player-piano is sold on payments. →

Next—the regular method of selling player-pianos does not include any special privileges—other than giving the customer a player-bench and probably a few rolls of music. →

Your piano or player-piano will be delivered immediately upon receipt of the 5 dollar initial payment. Make your selection at once.

Our co-operative terms are, five dollars as an initial payment, then only two dollars a week.

Under this co-operative plan, there is no interest to be added to the price—three hundred and ninety-five dollars.

Our co-operative plan not only includes a player-bench and nine rolls of music—your own selection—but——

A five-year guarantee—the same as on the piano.

Privilege of returning the instrument within thirty days and "getting your money back."

Privilege of exchanging for another player-piano at any time within one year.

And the voluntary cancellation of all unpaid payments in the event of death.

Copyright 1912, by Stone & McCarrick, Inc.

All of the features of the co-operative plan are carried out in offering the player-pianos, with the single exception that the terms on the player-piano are two dollars a week instead of—as on the piano—one dollar and twenty-five cents a week.

This co-operative plan thus becomes a broad and liberal plan of merchandising. Its keynote is economy—Its main theme liberalities, privileges and protection to those who put pianos or player-pianos in their homes through it.

Brief paragraphs which tell whole co-operative plan

First. You get a piano which is worth and sells regularly at three hundred and fifty dollars, for two hundred and forty-eight dollars and seventy-five cents, saving you at the outset one hundred and one dollars and twenty-five cents.

Second. When you finish paying for your piano, if bought in the usual way, you still owe from twenty-five to thirty-five dollars interest. Through this co-operative plan, when you have paid your two hundred and forty-eight dollars and seventy-five cents, you have finished paying. There are no further payments to be made, either on account of interest or for any other reason.

Third. Instead of paying twenty to twenty-five dollars as a first payment and ten, twelve or fifteen dollars a month as you will in a regular way, during this co-operative sale you pay but five dollars to join in this associate movement and then but one dollar and twenty-five cents a week.

Fourth. You get the strongest guarantee ever put on a piano; a joint guarantee signed by the manufacturers—Marshall & Wendell—and ourselves, giving you protection for five years that is as safe as a government bond.

Fifth. You get the privilege of returning your piano at the end of a thirty days' trial and getting your money back.

Sixth. Within one year from the day you get your piano, through this co-operative plan, you may exchange it for any reason whatsoever, without so much as a penny's loss.

Seventh. All payments remaining unpaid are voluntarily canceled in event of your death—thus leaving the piano free of encumbrance to your family.

Eighth. You get through this co-operative plan an opportunity to earn cash dividends for each and every week's time the life of the co-operative agreement of one hundred and ninety-five weeks is shortened. Through this privilege it is possible for you to earn cash dividends, amounting in all to twenty-nine dollars and twenty-five cents.

Ninth. You are given opportunity to secure others to co-operate in this plan. This still further reduces the cost of your instrument.

Tenth. Under this plan, two tunings, a piano stool to match the piano, a late style scarf and delivery within one hundred miles of St. Louis are included without adding any further expense to the two hundred and forty-eight dollars and seventy-five cents.

QUIT CALOMEL!

Thousands Are Turning From This Dangerous Drug.

A Safe Vegetable Substitute is Olive Tablets for the Liver.

Dr. F. M. Edwards, a prominent physician of Ohio, has discovered a new laxative and liver toner in a combination of vegetable materials, mixed with olive oil, which is in effect almost exactly like the old and untrustworthy calomel, except that there are none of the bad after effects of calomel.

Dr. Edwards has long been a foe of calomel, though he recognized its value along with its dangers.

His distrust of the uncertain drug eventually started him years ago towards experiments with the view of discovering a substitute, and he is today in possession of the long-sought-for combination, which is in the shape of a little sugar-coated, olive-oil colored tablet.

The result of 17 years' experience and practice are embodied in these marvelous little tablets.

They are called Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They act the bowels, and their effect on the liver has been the means of relief to many of Dr. Edwards' regular patients as well as to thousands of others who have suffered and were afraid of calomel.

They are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of harmful impurities. 10c and 25c per box.

GIRL, PRISONER IN MOVIES TICKET BOX, SEES PANIC; 2 DEAD

Doors of Cage Open Inside of Theater and She Is Forced to Witness Struggle.

BOY'S CRY CAUSES RUSH

Film Flashes, Loss Under $1, Blaze Quickly Put Out, but Audience Is Scared.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Prisoner in the little ticket booth at the Houston Street Moving Picture Theater, where the explosion of a film and cries of "fire" started a panic among the 400 spectators last night, Rose Seigle was forced to be witness of the struggle in which two women were trampled to death and a dozen other persons badly injured.

"I heard a cry from the inside, then a rush," she said. "There was a crowd of persons in front of my booth seeking to enter the theater when those inside rushed out. There was a crush against the doors, little girls, boys and men and women all seemed to shoot out together. My little brother, Ned, came running down the steps in front of the first rush and I saw him get safely around the corner of the entrance.

Tumbled Down Steps.

"The first half dozen or so got down the steps all right and then they began tumbling. As soon as they struck the bottom landing, others were on top of them, and soon there was a large semicircle of bodies on the pavement over which the other persons ran. More fell and at one time it seemed as though the pile was seven feet deep. I couldn't get out of my booth because the doors open into the theater. I just had to stay there helpless, hearing the cries."

The panic was caused by a boy crying "fire" when a film burned. The blaze did hardly a dollar's damage and was put out in a few seconds. The flash which the spectators had seen, however, was enough to terrify them. It was a repetition of half a dozen similar panics which have occurred in moving picture theaters here, but the list of casualties was greater than at any previous time.

With over 800 similar moving picture theaters in the city, many of which Fire Commissioner Johnson says are worse than the Houston street place, the hazards are likely to be taken up anew by the Board of Aldermen, which has had before it for some time a measure relating to the safety of moving picture theaters.

The worst moving picture theater accident in this country was at Canonsburg, Pa., in August, 1912, when 25 persons were killed. Ninety persons lost their lives in a moving picture theater fire in Bolgvie, Russia, in 1911.

COAL KING, 58, TO TAKE GIRL, 21, AS HIS THIRD WIFE

He Paid $1,000,000 to "Honey Hawes" When He Divorced Her Last June.

BRIDE-TO-BE IN HOSPITAL

Josiah Thompson Met Her When She, as Child, Urged Father to Hold Coal Land.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 3.—Josiah Van-Kirk Thompson, the multimillionaire coal operator of Uniontown, Pa., who recently got a divorce from "Honey Hawes Thompson," is again to venture in for the fields of matrimony. His reported bride-to-be is Mabel Moredock, 21 years old, of Jefferson, Greene County, a daughter of G. B. M. Moredock, formerly a wealthy man. The girl is at the West Penn Hospital here, where she recently was operated on for appendicitis.

"I would prefer at present to say nothing about any engagement to Mr. Thompson," Miss Moredock, a pretty brunette, said at the hospital.

"At present I would prefer that no denial; in fact, nothing, be published about the matter. If Mr. Thompson wants a denial published that is up to Mr. Thompson," said George B. M. Moredock.

Thompson divorced Blanche Gardner Thompson after he paid her $1,000,000. He is 58 years old, but looks 40.

Met Girl When She Was Child.

The Moredock family is one of the best known in Greene County. The girl's grandfather, although 80 years old, was president of the Farmers and Drovers' National Bank at Waynesburg when it was wrecked. Both her grandfather and her father owned valuable undeveloped coal lands, while she and her brother, George, held title to a minor venture. The assessment of the bank stockholders meant that the Moredocks would be stripped of all their cash in the bank and all their quick assets, and they stood a chance of being compelled to sell their properties cheaply. A friend placed before Thompson the plight of the Moredocks. Thompson visited their homestead. He talked over affairs with Miss Moredock's father in the presence of Miss Moredock, then a child.

Thompson remarked that coal lands at that time brought $60 an acre. The girl ejaculated, "Dad, don't sell. If it takes 10 years to liquidate the affairs of the bank, the land will be worth ten times $60 an acre." The father took the advice of his daughter. The land today is selling at $500 to $800 an acre and the affairs of the bank have not been liquidated.

Thompson did not forget the girl. Visits from time to time were made to Greene County "on business," and calls were made at the Moredock home. Recently these visits became more frequent.

Third Venture for Him.

This will be the third matrimonial venture for the coal king. In his youth he married Mary Anderson, who died in 1890. Two sons were born.

In 1902 Thompson met Blanche Gardner Hawes of Johnstown, a widow of a former racehorse owner and bookmaker. In racehorse circles the woman was known as "Honey Hawes." Thompson became infatuated with her in 1903 in New York. He built a $1,000,000 home in Uniontown for his bride, bought her fast horses and built her a half-mile race track.

The union was not harmonious. "Honey Hawes" Thompson was a lover of sports. Thompson was a hard worker. Alleged association with young men caused a separation last May, and he applied for a divorce before Judge R. P. Umbel in the Fayette County Court. A hearing was held behind closed doors June 20, 1912.

At his home in Uniontown Thompson would not admit the truth of the engagement report.

22 AUTO BANDITS ON TRIAL IN PARIS FOR 22 MURDERS

Three Women Among Defendants Accused of Daylight Robberies and Shootings.

By Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Paris eagerly awaited the beginning today of the trial of the 22 automobile bandits who terrorized the city and its environs a year ago. They committed many murders and robberies, until their leader, Jules Bonnot, the "demon chauffeur," was killed in April after a fierce battle against thousands of police and troops.

The list of accusations against them includes 22 murders. The crimes frequently were carried out in daylight. The first record of their operations deals with the theft of a large quantity of guns, revolvers and daggers from a shop in Paris in November, 1911. Then in rapid succession followed robberies and murders. Several branch banks in the suburbs were raided, and even the Bank of France did not escape their efforts, for they made an attempt to rob it of $200,000.

The police were special marks for their hatred. They murdered a patrolman at midday, opposite the principal railroad terminus in Paris. They also killed Assistant Superintendent Jouin of the Paris Detective Department, and at the same time wounded Chief Inspector Colmar.

Among the defendants today were three young women—Anne Maitrejean, Marie Vuillemin and Barbe Leclero, who were closely connected with the bandits in their operations.

HOSPITAL BILL INDORSED

Doctors Favor Infectious Diseases Special Department.

A resolution has been adopted by the St. Louis Medical Society indorsing the bill pending in the Municipal Assembly to authorize the construction of a hospital for infectious diseases between the city infirmary and the city sanitarium on Arsenal street. The doctors urge that the proposed site is centrally located and is the best situation available.

The members of the society assert that infectious diseases would not be spread about the neighborhood because of the hospital. The resolution states that "the popular belief in the danger of the spread of infectious diseases to the neighborhood from a modern infectious disease hospital is contradicted by the great bulk of modern scientific theory and practice."

HITCHCOCK ASKS LOWERING OF SOME PARCEL POST RATES

Report Also Tentatively Suggests Increase of the 11-Pound Weight Limit.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Postmaster-General Hitchcock's annual report, tentatively suggests reduction of some parcel post rates and increasing the limit of weight beyond 11 pounds; recommends civil pensions for postal employes; an increase in rates on second class mail which may pave the way for 1-cent letter postage; the consolidation of the third and fourth classes, so books and papers may be forwarded by parcel post; and points out that during his administration expense of operating the postal service has been cut down $45,000,000.

In course of a statement on the condition of postal finances, Hitchcock says in his report:

"In 1911, for the first time since 1883, postal receipts exceeded postal expenditures, leaving a surplus instead of a deficit. A heavy loss of revenue in 1912, due to the extraordinary amount of franked matter mailed in the political campaign, created a temporary deficit; but since the close of the fiscal year the income of the department again has outstripped expenses.

"The year preceding the present administration was marked by the largest postal deficit on record, amounting to $17,500,000. During the next two years the deficit was greatly reduced and later eliminated. When compared with the financial showing of four years ago the reports of income and expense for subsequent years indicate an aggregate saving of about $45,000,000.

Service Is Not Curtailed.

"The transformation of a deficit into a surplus has been accomplished not by curtailing the service, but by developing it along profitable lines. While postal facilities have been greatly enlarged, extensions have not been made in a haphazard manner, but only when shown on investigation to be justified by conditions."

The establishing of postal savings banks at presidential postoffices was completed early in the fiscal year, ended June 30,1912—the year covered by the report. Since then the system has been extended to 4004 fourth-class postoffices, as well as to 645 branch offices and stations in the larger cities. There are now 12,812 postal savings banks. The number of depositors is approximately 300,000 and the deposits aggregate about $28,000,000, not including $1,314,140 withdrawn and invested in postal savings bonds.

On the basis of the present monthly net increase of deposits it is estimated that the gross income of the postal savings system for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, will amount to $700,000 and the interest payable to depositors to $300,000. The income of the system for the fiscal year will meet the interest payments and the total expenses of the central office, but will be approximately $275,000 less than enough to cover the entire expense of the service.

However, the Postmaster-General's report says, "it is expected that when the deposits have increased to $50,000,000, which at the present rate they will do soon, the system will be self-sustaining.

Parcel Post Recommendations.

The report contains no references to subjects which have developed since Dec. 1, and, consequently, the Postmaster-General's consideration of the parcel post has to do only with the preliminary work of establishing the new system, which went into effect Jan. 1. Tentatively, however, he recommends not only that the parcel post rates be reduced, but that the weight of packages be increased to a point above the maximum weight of 11 pounds.

On this subject the report says:

"While the postage rates for the new parcel post system range considerably lower than corresponding express charges, it is believed that experience will show them to be higher in some instances than is necessary in order to maintain the service at cost. Likewise, the restriction that places an 11-pound limit on the weight of parcels mailed should be regarded as merely tentative. After the system is thoroughly organized on that basis the scope of the service in its usefulness to the public should be still further enlarged by increasing the weight limit. If properly developed under efficient management, the parcel post will prove to be a most important factor in reducing the cost of living."

Perhaps the most important recommendation contained in the report is that the third and fourth classes of mail be consolidated so that books and other printed matter may be forwarded by parcel post. At present the postage charges for these two classes of mail bear no fixed ratio to each other. For certain weights and zones the parcel post rates are lower than the third class rates, while in other cases they are higher.

Books Like Other Parcels.

"This condition," it is pointed out, "is likely to result in much confusion and should not exist. Packages containing books or catalogues do not differ in any essential particular from other parcels and they should be handled by parcel post. Prior to the enactment of the parcel post law the department urged that these two classes of mail be consolidated, and the recommendation of such action is now renewed."

The report directs attention to the approval of the commission, headed by Associate Justice Hughes of the United States Supreme Court, of the Postoffice Department's recommendation that the postage rate on second class mail be increased from 1 cent to 2 cents a pound. In the opinion of the Postmaster-General favorable action by Congress on the report of the commission would be a step toward the proper adjustment of postal charges.

"There is a widespread popular interest," the report says, "in the plan to lower the postage charge on letters from 2 cents to 1 cent an ounce. The proposed increase in the second-class rate would pave the way for this change, making it possible to reduce the first-class rate without departing from the present policy of a self-supporting postal service.

During the fiscal year 1912 more than 800,000,000 pieces of mail, having an aggregate weight of about 61,000,000 pounds, were carried free through the mails under the franks of congressmen and of various Government establishments. Had postage at the ordinary rates been paid on this matter the revenues of the department would have been increased by more than $20,000,000.

FARMER IN DARK DRIVES OFF BLUFF, KILLED IN FALL

Accident Near Crystal City Where Construction of Guard Rail Has Been Urged.

William Cuern, 60 years old, a well-to-do farmer residing near Crystal City, Mo., drove his team off a high bluff while on his way home from Crystal City Saturday night and was killed.

His body was found Sunday morning in the wreckage of his farm wagon, and there were indications that he had been killed instantly. One of the horses was dead, but the other was uninjured.

The bluff is about 40 feet high and the upper edge is only a few feet from the county road. That point in the road is recognized as dangerous and the construction of a fence or guard rail to prevent accidents has been advocated from time to time.

Cuern never used intoxicants, according to his acquaintances, and he seemed to be in good health when last seen in Crystal City, shortly after 6 p. m. The Jefferson County authorities, therefore, suppose that he lost his bearings in the darkness and steered his team over the edge of the bluff, or that the horses wandered from the road and he failed to notice the fact. An inquest resulted in a verdict of death by accident.

Cuern is survived by his wife and several grown children.

Rules Stretched a Bit, but Parcel Post Runs Like Oil

Trail of Skunk Skin in Mail Across U. S. Raises Question, "What's a Bad Odor?"

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The parcel post is working like a well-oiled engine, the experimental days seem to have passed, and the people are trying to reduce the cost of living by the use of the new postal express.

The strict letter of the parcel post act is not being adhered to all along the line. Many postmasters act without learning the rules.

In the mountains of Georgia a trapper shipped a skunk skin to a friend in Seattle. The skin wended its way across the continent, leaving its trail. Anything with a bad ordor is "unmailable," but what is a "bad odor" the department has been asked.

S. J. Betts, a seed corn farmer of Raliegh, N. C., has entered his protest against a law that permits the sending of skunk skins by parcel post and not seed corn.

Wants the Law Changed.

"I see," said Betts, "where one of our farmers has just sent a skunk hide which had to be kept out of the building until the mail wagon started to the depot. Now, as I see it, corn for a horse can be sent by parcel post, but corn for a farmer to plant is barred. Thus the horse is favored above its master, but surely a skunk will not be preferred to the farmer's corn. The law should be changed."

The Postoffice Department has a letter from Miss Louise Moore of Sandy Springs, Md., expressing her appreciation of the good service the parcel post is doing. "I have a beautiful cat that came to me by parcel post," she wrote.

Cats and other live animals are barred from the parcel post, but now and then they get by.

John Hedrick of White Oak, Va., sent by parcel post to Mrs. Sarah Lillington of Washington five corncrib mice he trapped one night. They were for "Sallie," the family cat. The postoffice people never knew about the mice until they saw a notice about them in a paper.

No Liquor by Parcel Post.

In Ohio a rural free delivery carrier was asked to carry a baby from one home to another. The laws do not provide for such a package, but the carrier delivered the baby for 15 cents' worth of parcel post stamps, which were stuck on the basket containing the newborn tot.

The ashes of a citizen of Illinois, who was cremated in St. Louis, were sent to the relatives of the deceased by parcel post for burial. Ashes of dead people are mailable, but the Postoffice Department does not care to have its negro carriers fall heir to such parcels lest it lose some good men.

Many efforts have been made to send liquors by parcel post. Somehow an impression that the law permits the shipping of whisky and other intoxicants got abroad and hundreds of inquiries on that point have come to the department. No sort of intoxicating liquor can be sent by mail.

700 COLLEGE GIRLS MAIL "WASH" HOME; LAUNDRIES COMPLAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.

THE laundries of Evanston, a large part of the industrial business of the town, have complained to President Harris of Northwestern University because of the young women's use of the parcel post. The girls find they can beat the high cost of laundry by sending soiled linen home through the mail.

Seven hundred girls who used to have laundry work done in Evanston are sending the linen home. President Harris listened to the laundry complaints and then showed that he could not compel the young women to have their clothes washed in Evanston.

HOLDS 5 ACES, TWO OF CLUBS; IS STABBED TO DEATH

A poker hand of five aces, two of them clubs, is believed by the East St. Louis police to explain the murder of William F. Shelton, 29 years old, of 240 Brady avenue, East St. Louis, who was stabbed while in a room in the rear of Hall's saloon at Broadway and Main street Sunday.

At noon, Shelton, with five cards clutched in one hand, ran out of the alley alongside the saloon. He staggered across the street and fell at the curb in front of Merker's drug store. The man was suffering from a wound in his neck. He died in an ambulance on the way to a hospital.

When Shelton fell the cards which he had been holding were scattered in the gutter. Persons in the crowd told the police the cards were five aces and two were aces of clubs.

On information from Edward Huff, 12 years old, Alec B. Boyd, a negro, whom the boy said he had seen in the room from which Shelton ran, was arrested.

DANGER OF CONSUMPTION LIES IN NEGLECT

No More Dangerous Than Any Other Disease if Taken in Time.

People who have Consumption sacrifice their lives needlessly if they give up and take it for granted that nothing can be done for them.

Consumption, it has been demonstrated, can be overcome even in its worst stages, and while new lung tissues can not be formed, what remains can be protected against the ravages of the Tubercle Bacilli.

One of the leading preparations carrying on this fight is Sirolin, a preparation which has in a short time achieved remarkable results in this country after a real triumph in Europe.

Sufferers from Consumption or weak lungs should not fail to secure the aid of Sirolin to assist them back to health.

Information about Sirolin can be secured in this country from the Sirolin Co., 228 West Broadway, New York City, Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Stores and all leading druggists are recommending and distributing Sirolin with considerable success.—ADV.

Don't Use Drugs for Constipation

Just Try Nature's Cure

We all know that constipation brings countless other complaints if not taken in hand—appendicitis is among them—also that any drug will lose its power after being taken for a time—but we should also know that every drug forces Nature instead of assisting her, and will, if continued, make us slave to them.

There is now a method of Internal Bathing which will keep the intestines sweet, clean and pure and free from waste matter, assisting Nature can demand—which, when occasionally, will prevent constipation, biliousness with its depression, and the countless more serious diseases which are caused by the blood taking up the poisons from the intestines and carrying them through the system.

This method is the "J. B. L. Cascara," which is being enthusiastically used by many thousands, is prescribed by the most enlightened physicians everywhere and is now being shown and explained by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Olive, Seventh and Locust, Broadway and Washington, St. Louis, Mo.

Everyone should at least investigate this nature-cure without delay.

April 10, 1907. JOSEPH PULITZER.

THIRD DEGREE REPUDIATED.

The third degree in St. Louis should not survive the blow it has received in the acquittal of Barbara Arnold. The too common methods by which the police trap the unwary into damaging admissions have perhaps never been more thoroughly discredited.

Because an immature mind is no match for one of the most adroit and experienced of detective minds, the brilliant absurdities of this case had their starting point. A self-accusation of arson was first extorted from the child by a police officer and in the utter absence of motive was then prevented from exceeding all limits in probability by the manufacture of a pyromania hypothesis.

An obscure form of hysteria which might make a young girl responsible for a smouldering fabric at the Windermere Hotel after she had passed through the Berlin Hotel fire was not incomprehensible to the public, which understood not a word of the floods of words written about the case by alienists and near alienists. After the confession, saved to credence by pyromania, had been made, some faint trail of corroborative detail was pretended to be discovered in the Windermere case. But without the confession these details would not have been accepted as even the flimsiest of circumstantial evidence pointing to guilt.

Attorney Ralph's denunciations of the third degree were not too severe. It is illegal and hurtful. It cannot be justified as a means to worthy ends. Its results are notoriously untrustworthy. It does a mischief for which no recompense can be made. Even with a court vindication, trapped Barbara is left in a position inspiring compassion. Not all will accept without mental reservations the verdict of innocence. Among those familiar with her case there will always be some who will at least look on her as having something abnormal in her makeup—as one from whom full trust must be withheld.

The painful Barbara Arnold lesson should not be lost on the police. The third degree has no place in a system of law and justice.

Mr. Kimmel's appearance in Pike County is suspicious. Is he qualifying to run for office or merely to impersonate somebody who already has an office?

A TELLING CONTRAST.

Senator Stanley, former chairman of the committee which investigated the Steel Trust, says he is not surprised at the steelworkers' strike at Rankin, with its accompanying bloodshed, because the committee's investigation proved that the trust "forces thousands of its employes into inhuman slavery."

Speaking of the thousands of Uncle Sam's workmen on the Isthmus of Panama, a writer in the Christian Herald says: "As men, they are loyal, contented and happy. Every employe is entitled to 30 days' sick leave, in addition to his 42 days' vacation." And the result of these and other wise methods of making the canal workers happy is that it has come to be "a body of picked men; a force the like of which has never before been gathered for any similar work."

If the steel magnates were as good business men as they think they are, they would see that Uncle Sam's methods of treating the workers pay better than theirs.

Freedom from disease being one of the necessaries of life, there are over $0,000,000 other reasons for removing the tariff from medicines and surgical instruments, besides those of the 600 hospitals which are petitioning Congress for this relief.

FLATTERING ST. LOUIS.

A St. Louis woman whose husband's business has compelled her to become a resident of Philadelphia, writes the Post-Dispatch complaining of a screed which recently appeared in the Evening Bulletin of that city, which stated that the "St. Louis Bride Plan," was not popular there. Said "plan" is the "scheme of marrying sons to domestics," which the Bulletin writer states has been adopted by "recently rich St. Louis families." The article is based on the Tichacek family story, in a recent Sunday Post-Dispatch.

There is no need for a Philadelphia paper to disclaim the so-called "plan," supposed to have been put in force by Mr. and Mrs. Tichacek. We would not for a moment believe that Philadelphians, as a rule, had enough sense to pick out, as wives for their sons, young women well trained in the kind of knowledge and industry that, except in suffragette circles, is supposed to fit girls for marriage.

Nor need the writer of the letter worry as to the possible truth of the Bulletin writer's charges with regard to St. Louis' "recently rich" families adopting such a course. It is flattering St. Louis to suppose that these or other average families are doing any different from families elsewhere, namely, trying to select life partners for their marriageable children from the social ranks supposed to be above them, without any regard to practical education for the married state.

THE NELSON CONTEMPT CASE.

Judge Latshaw's remark that he would never permit William R. Nelson, editor of the Kansas City Star, to go to jail was creditable to his sense of justice, but he based his determination on the wrong ground. He said "it would be a reproach to the commonwealth for a man who has done as much for Kansas City as Mr. Nelson has done, to be carted away to jail like a common thing."

We go beyond this. We hold that the sentencing of Mr. Nelson by Judge Guthrie for contempt of court because Mr. Nelson criticised the action of the court in his newspaper was an outrageous exercise of arbitrary power. It would be as outrageous in the case of the most obscure citizen.

Thrusting aside all consideration of the truth or falsity, the justice or injustice of the Star's article which was offensive to Judge Guthrie we do not believe he was right in attempting to exercise his power as a judge to punish a citizen for criticising his action on the bench. The power to punish for contempt should never be exercised for acts beyond the immediate presence of the court, unless upon officers of the court or upon persons guilty of disobedience to the court's orders. It should certainly never extend to the punishment of newspaper editors for criticising judicial actions and proceedings. The press should be as free to criticise judges as to criticise other public officers and it should be subject to the same responsibility under the law for its utterances.

The conviction of Mr. Nelson expressed nothing except the offended mind of the Judge. There was no trial before an impartial tribunal. There was no hearing of the facts and no consideration of the case as presented by the offender or his attorney. The Court was judge, jury and law.

A judge has the same recourse as any citizen against defamatory or libelous articles in the newspapers. He can bring suit under the civil or criminal code or both and seek vindication in court.

We can assure Judge Guthrie that the article in the Star, no matter how defamatory it may have been, does not as he said, "tend to bring judicial proceedings into disrepute" nearly so much as the arbitrary acts of judges through contempt proceedings to muzzle free speech for the protection of courts from public criticism.

It is well that this issue of stretching contempt proceedings to embrace critics of courts has been made with reference to a man who is in position to combat it to the best advantage. Mr. Nelson should take the issue to the court of last resort and if he is defeated there, to the people for final decision, through legislation, as to the power a judge may exercise to punish those who offend him. Let us have a settlement of this issue.

The question, "Why is not the free bridge completed?" may yet rank with "How old is Ann?" and "Why is a mouse when it spins?".

NEW YORK'S NEW TERMINAL.

The new Grand Central Station in New York, which has been building for nearly ten years, was opened Saturday. It is declared to be the largest and most costly railroad terminal in the world. Included in its facilities for the traveling public are 33.6 miles of track. Tunnels under the rivers connect it with New Jersey on the west and Long Island on the east.

Curiously enough, all this additional accommodation for the public is provided at a cost of scores of millions without any additional transportation charge. That "extra charge" which a St. Louis newspaper justifies in the case of the McKinley Line for the "extra expense" of terminal facilities and facilities overcoming natural barriers belongs to a long-past period in transportation history.

If there was ever any good reason for "arbitraries" for bridge, tunnel and terminal service, the reason has ceased to exist. St. Louisans arguing for them live in a bygone generation. The bridge toll is a relic of pioneer days.

In case of another effort to establish pyromania by the third degree, the alienists should give their attention to the police rather than the alleged pyromaniac.

ONE-TERM AMENDMENT.

The one-term amendment, if adopted, will apply to three men. These are Mr. Roosevelt, who served two terms in the presidency; Mr. Taft, who is completing one term, and Mr. Wilson, who is about to enter on his service. The text of the amendment is properly so framed as to apply to each with rigid impartiality.

All other future Presidents who would be denied more than one term under the amendment will be given a service of six years. If ratification is prior to 1916, will Mr. Wilson also serve six years? Can the provision as to second terms affect him, as it undoubtedly does, unless the provision as to length of terms, superseding all other constitutional provision on the subject, also affect him? Possibly the House will modify the language to make it more explicit on the point.

It might be argued that the clause prohibiting increase in the President's emoluments during the term for which he was elected, prevents the 50 per cent increase in length of service of an incumbent actually in office at the time the amendment takes effect, but this clause would have no greater force than the amendment itself as a part of the Constitution. An amendment ratified by the States could give as good a title to the two additional years as an election by the Electoral College for two more years.

The influence on the public mind of the impudent attempt at seizure of power which threw off all disguise a year ago is reflected in the unexpected favorable vote of the Senate. This second attempt within a third of a century emphasized the real danger in this unguarded portion of the Constitution. The passage in spite of the complicated political conditions in the upper body shows the strength of conviction on the subject. It seems a sure indication of its passage in the House and its early ratification.

Can the sporting page ignore the exciting race this week between New Jersey and New Mexico to be the final state to approve the income tax?

A NEW PERIL.

The Evangelical Alliance in opposing home rule for St. Louis has opened our eyes to a new evil.

These good gentlemen oppose home rule because they say it will mean a wide-open town and because everything has been lovely during the past few years.

But how about the method of selecting the ministers of the various congregations represented in the Evangelical Alliance? And how about the collections made in these churches every Sunday?

Is it not wrong to allow these congregations to select their own pastors? How do we know they won't select a bad man, a man even who has drunk a glass of beer on Sunday? Horrors! the thought is too terrible! The obvious remedy is to place the appointment of these ministers in the hands of Gov. Major. And while we are about it, the salaries of the pastors should be fixed by the Legislature—although they should be paid, as at present, by the congregations.

And the power of determining how the Sunday collections shall be spent, should also be withdrawn from the ministers and given to the Governor.

The idea of a Governor's drinking a glass of beer on Sunday is bad enough; but a minister, never! Let us remove all temptation. Let us abolish home rule in the churches!

Give Dogs Their Day.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

To those who are waging this unwarranted warfare against dogs in general, I would suggest the reading of the late Senator Vest's beautiful tribute to man's most faithful animal friend.

Who cannot recall the boyhood days, in the open, when a dog was the most loyal and devoted of chums, and who can deny that the companionship of a good dog is of wholesome benefit to any boy, and far more elevating than some of the companionships indulged in nowadays?

The dispositions of dogs reflect their treatment, and whenever one shows signs of savagery, in nine cases out of ten, it has been goaded into this condition through neglect or abuse.

Self defense and the desire to live are laws of nature, and the dog has only his fangs to protect himself from torment or to resent the neglect which causes him to be hungry, thirsty or cold. Even man would act much the same under like circumstances.

It is only fair to the dog and to the public, that someone be responsible for the welfare of every dog, and the quicker an outcast is humanely put out of his misery the better for the dog. Yet this does not justify the hunting down like wild beasts of dogs that have homes and are properly cared for.

If given a fair chance, the average dog will demonstrate more real character than do some of his biped traducers.

A FRIEND OF THE "UNDER DOG."

No Respect for the Dead.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The coal rights under Pennsylvania graveyards are being sold. The cremation orator may well come in here with an argument against burial. Above or below, our poor bones are disturbed, place them where we will. DUSTIN.

"Hello Girls" Union.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I note the telegraph operators want the "hello girls" to join the union. Good for them! I am glad we have someone who pities the poor telephone operator, who sits nine and 10 hours without a 10 minutes' relief. My hope is that no telephone girl will stand back and not join the union. Think what a relief we will have, an eight-hour law and more wages.

Now, sister operators, do not hesitate to join when asked. Why not better our conditions? If it wasn't that most of us girls have homes and perhaps older brothers and sisters to help us, the telephone companies would have to have "wooden" operators, as we could not exist on the wages we are earning. A HELLO GIRL.

An Admirer of the Service.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Don't think because they do some things in Hamburg, Germany, that we must do them here. They do lots of things all over the old country that we don't do here, and vice versa. The editor of these letters and anyone else with an ounce of gray matter under his hat knows that a seat for every passenger in rush hours is rank folly. Everybody gets the first car. Public corporations do all they can to please the public. A kick in the right spot is O K, but don't be a chronic kicker. Don't kick because it hits a public corporation. We get more car service for our money than any city in the country.

I am a working man myself; do 10 hours per day, but I think with it. Boost; that's what St. Louis needs. A. B. C. D.

St. Patrick's Day Parade.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The great harbinger of spring, the day we all look to with a feeling of gladness and joy, will soon be with us, namely, St. Patrick's day. It is somewhat over four years ago since we had a St. Patrick's day parade in St. Louis, and the reasons given for the discontinuance are nonsence. If the Irish of St. Louis hope to keep up their identity they will see to it that the St. Patrick's day parade is resumed this year. I would, therefore, call the attention of the members of the Irish Catholic Parade Union, the different Irish societies, the Knights of Father Mathew and all members of the young men's sodalities of the various parished and the pastors of the same to the fact that the time is ripe for the revival of the St. Patrick's day parade in St. Louis on a large scale this year, 1913. P. JENEVA.

What Is a Safe Speed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I note that Police Captain Young intends to enforce the eight-hour speed law east of Grand avenue for automobiles and as I happen to be an owner of an automobile, take the liberty to say that an eight-mile-an-hour speed limit strictly enforced is about equal to telling us to leave our machines at home and there is no more need of enforcing that law than making a horse travel three or four miles an hour, and I do not see why the police department should be always trying to enforce new rules and ridiculous laws on to the automobile people and let drivers of other vehicles do as they please? THE UNITED RAILWAYS' SMOKEHOUSE.

YUAN THE MAN OF MYSTERY.

From the Chicago Daily News.

The world concedes that Yuan Shi-Kai has remarkable ability. He was an imperialist when he was made provisional president. Is he still an imperialist or has he become a republican? He has held power because he has the support of the army and because his high efficiency as an administrator commends him to the republicans. But as the head of the nation is he a Washington or a Napoleon? Does a republican form of government really exist in China? Observers in Pekin hesitate to answer these questions. In the meantime Yuan has gradually absorbed all the power and all the functions of the central government. He alone knows what is going on.

The National Assembly which a few months ago raged so furiously at Yuan has in recent weeks been a mere ghost of a legislative body, being unable to hold meetings for days at a time for lack of a quorum. It is not surprising therefore that in spite of the radical sentiment of South China some observers think the inscrutable Yuan is wearing out republican enthusiasm to such a degree that he will be enabled before many more months to proclaim himself emperor.

WHY WE GUARD MILK.

From the Illinois State Journal.

Upon very high authority it may be stated that milk and cream, including, of course, their products, butter and cheese, furnish 16 per cent of the total food of the average American family. Is it any wonder, therefore, that the milk question and the improvement of milk cows should be engaging more attention now than ever before?

King John of 1913.

From the Chicago News.

Almost the only thing King John is remembered for besides the fact that he was the brother of Richard Coeur de Leon, is that he signed the magna charta—and King George hasn't any brother Richard. His opportunity is to enfranchise women, if he would occupy a comfortable niche in history.

JUST A MINUTE

ANOTHER FEBRUARY.

It is an angry father
Who stoppeth one of three.
"Now, by thy youthful innocence,
Why choppest thou the tree?

"It lieth in the orchard
To wither and decay,
And nevermore its blossoms bright
Shall burgeon in the May.

"The birds it has supported
Are sad to see it pass,
And all the slugs and parasites
Are weeping in the grass.

"The sentimental borer
Is audible with pain,
And never shall the cherries sweet
Stain human lips again.

"The little bell your mother
Suspended in the tree
Will never tinkle forth again
Its warning melody.

"The cool and shady bower
Upon a Summer's day,
And the wine leaves of the Autumn—
Why choppest them away?"

It is a blushing penitent,
With hot tears in his eyes,
Who fingers with his handkerchief,
And shamefully replies:

"I chopp-ed it, my father—
I cannot tell a lie.
The other boys are innocent—
The criminal is I.

'I chopp-ed with my hatchet,
As hard as I could hit,
And in the thoughtlessness of youth
Decapitated it.

"But thou'rt a poet, father,
And I am but a lad;
It did not strike me until now
That what I did was bad.

"I did not think of Summer,
Of blossoms when they blow,
Or if the slugs and parasites
Had anywhere to go.

"I did not think of wine leaves,
Of borers and of birds,
'Till they arose to torture me
In thy poetic words.

"I only thought of getting
The wallop in my hips,
And showing both the other boys
How I could scatter chips.

"I chopp-ed it, my father,
Contritely be it said,
And willingly will I repair
With thee behind the shed."

It was a softened father
Who answered: "I relent.
Thou'lt never be a poet, son,
But may be President.

"Thou can'st not see a vision,
And can'st not dream a dream,
But these are only little things
Which no one will esteem.

"Thou art no castle builder
To waken from a trance—
Thou art a practical, my son,
And thou hast got a chance."

It is a playful father
Who turns him on his knees,
And cries: "To find you so is worth
A million cherry trees!"

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

BEAUTY CULTURE.

RUTH.—We know of no "harmless black hair dye."

READER.—Talcum powder is not better for the face than rice powder.

LONG READER.—Readers may not you what will bleach a near-brown switch that is unbleachable by peroxide.

READER.—Artificial dimples are not easily secured, though in Paris where great risks are taken by women who want to be beautiful they do it every day. Cutting a dimple in the chin is rather a simple process and little risk is taken. With the cheeks, however, it is quite a different story. The operation leaves a scar almost as often as it produces the desired dimple, and hence the practice is to be avoided. Dimples come naturally in plump cheeks and the thing to do is to massage your cheeks and try to fatten them, and then nature will send the desired dimple.

CLEANSING.

M. C. M.—See Answers Jan. 23, at this office.

B. F.—To remove leather stains from your hands you might try rubbing with alcohol.

JIMMIE.—Straw hat: Juice of one lemon mixed with tablespoon yellow sulphur. Apply with small brush and rub in hard. After dirt has been removed place clean cloth over hat and set flatirons (cold) on brim, so that it will dry straight.

HEALTH HINTS.

R. S.—It is not advisable to use peroxide in cleansing the teeth; it may be used occasionally.

MEGS.—Symptoms of intestinal indigestion: Abdominal pain and distention, emaciation, anemia and various nervous symptoms.

DAISY.—"Medicine" and "pills" for constipation may react and make matters worse. If you use them, let it by direction of a capable physician who understands your case. You might try agar between meals.

BILLY.—Consumptive himself, is said to be almost harmless. Trouble to others comes from his spitting. It is said that the shipment of mummies from Egypt spread tuberculosis and consumption throughout Europe and America.

MRS. DELMAR.—Distilled water may be formed by passing steam through a glass tube in cold water. The lower temperature of the water condenses the steam. When water becomes steam most of its impurities remain in the vessel in which it is heated. The distilled water is purified water.

LAW POINTS.

E. W. BAUM.—Explain more definitely what you desire to know in reference to collections.

A. B. C.—We see no reason why a young man of 20 would not make a competent witness to a will.

F. D.—No license for mail order business required if no stock is carried. Practice no deception.

DOUBTFUL.—We see no reason why a will executed on a Sunday would not be valid. The statutes do not forbid it, and we know of no case where such an issue has been brought before the courts.

ILLINOIS FARMER.—We agree with you. Tenants have no right to make repairs or incur any expense about the place and charge it to landlord or set the rents unless a written agreement in the lease gives such right.

F. A. E.—(Fire and life.) It is for you to assured to keep tab when any insurance policy expires or when payments are due, and have same renewed, or pay the payments, as the case may be. Failure to do so would cause the policy to lapse or expire and the company would not be liable in such event. If you have a written contract obligating the company to come to you the case would be otherwise, but no company obligates itself under such a contract.

R. F. D.—(Illinois.) The deceased having died intestate, no child or children or descendants of any deceased child or children surviving, the widow takes one-half of real and all the personal, the other half of real estate descends to the parents, brothers and sisters, or their descendants. There is no necessity for action on relatives' part at present, unless things do not run as anticipated. To engage services of an attorney. The value on the estate should show the names of heirs, residence and relationship to the deceased; by calling on clerk of county court same will be shown to you.

ANXIOUS ILLA.—If you did not have the notes in question, it seems to us you should have little trouble in proving it, the same having been paid to bank, which we presume was done. If you cannot prove the payment you will no doubt be required to meet their demand. However, you need not pay unless the firm shows you the notes you signed. Make tender to bank or firm and if the notes you signed cannot be produced because lost, do not pay, but inform them you will do so providing they give you a good and sufficient indemnity bond which will secure you from possibly having to pay the debt again should the same be in the hands of innocent persons for value.

XXX.—A corporation is defined as an artificial person, created by law or under authority of law, from a group or succession of natural persons, and having a continuous existence irrespective of that of its members and powers and liabilities different from those of its members. A collection of individuals united into one body and vested by the forms of the law with the capacity of acting in several respects as an individual. The law prescribes how it shall be formed and the purposes for capital necessary, the least number required to incorporate, etc. Depending upon the business to be engaged in, the law specifies under what the same shall be incorporated, and the articles of association must comply therewith, state the purpose for which formed, the amount of capital stock, the number of shares and the value thereof, the name, etc. Calling the members of an unincorporated concern, such as president, secretary, etc., will do no harm, but to call an "incorporated" upon the business stationery would not be advisable unless there has been no incorporation.

MASTERPIECES OF AMERICAN FICTION

THERE WERE NINETY AND NINE

BY RICHARD HARDING DAVIS.

PART I.

YOUNG HARRINGFORD, or the "Goodwood Plunger," as he was perhaps better known at that time, had come to Monte Carlo in a very different spirit and in a very different state of mind from any in which he had ever visited the place before. He had come there for the same reason that a wounded lion or a poisoned rat, for that matter, crawls away into a corner, that it may be alone when it dies. He stood leaning against one of the pillars of the Casino with his back to the moonlight, and with his eyes blinking painfully at the flaming lamps above the green tables inside. He knew they would be put out very soon; and as he had something to do then, he regarded them fixedly with painful earnestness, as a man who is condemned to die at sunrise watches through his barred windows for the first gray light of the morning.

That queer, numb feeling in his head and the sharp line of pain between his eyebrows which had been growing worse for the last three weeks, was troubling him more terribly than ever before, and his nerves had thrown off all control and rioted at the base of his head and at his wrists, and jerked and twitched as though, so it seemed to him, they were striving to pull the tired body into pieces and to set themselves free. He was wondering whether if he should take his hand from his pocket and touch his head he would find that it had grown longer, and had turned into a soft, spongy mass which would give beneath his fingers. He considered this for some time, and even went so far as to half withdraw one hand, but thought better of it and shoved it back again as he considered how much less terrible it was to remain in doubt than to find that this phenomenon had actually taken place.

The pity of the whole situation was, that the boy was only a boy, with all his man's miserable knowledge of the world, and the reason of it all was that he had entirely too much heart and not enough money to make an unsuccessful gambler. If he had only been able to lose his conscience instead of his money, or even if he had kept his conscience and won, it is not likely that he would have been waiting for the lights to go out at Monte Carlo. But he had not only lost all of his money and more besides, which he could never make up, but he had lost other things which meant much more to him now than money, and which could not be made up or paid back at even usurious interest. He had not only lost the right to sit at his father's table, but the right to think of the girl whose place in Surrey ran next to that of his own people, and whose lighted window in the north wing he had watched on those many dreary nights when she had been ill, from his own terrace across the trees in the park. And all he had gained was the notoriety that made him a byword with decent people, and the hero of the racetracks and the music halls. He was no longer "Young Harringford, the eldest son of the Harringfords of Surrey," but the "Goodwood Plunger," to whom Fortune had made desperate love and had then jilted, and mocked, and overthrown.

As he looked back at it now and remembered himself as he was then, it seemed as though he was considering an entirely distinct and separate personage—a boy of whom he liked to think, who had had strong, healthy ambitions and gentle tastes. He reviewed it passionately as he stood staring at the lights inside the Casino, as clearly as he was capable of doing in his present state and with miserable interest. How he had laughed when young Norton told him in boyish confidence that there was a horse named Siren in his father's stables which would win the Goodwood Cup; how, having gone down to see Norton's people when the long vacation began, he had seen Siren daily, and had talked of her until two every morning in the smoking-room, and had then staid up two hours later to watch her take her trial spin over the downs. He remembered how they used to stamp back over the long grass wet with dew, comparing watches and talking of the time in whispers, and said good night as the sun broke over the trees in the park. And then just at this time of all others when the horse was the only interest of those around him, from Lord Norton and his whole household down to the youngest stable boy and oldest gaffer in the village, he had come into his money.

And then began the then and still inexplicable plunge into gambling, and the wagering of greater sums than the owner of Siren dared to risk himself, the secret backing of the horse through commissioners all over England, until the boy by his single fortune had brought the odds against her from 60 to 6 down to 6 to 0. He recalled, with a chill that seemed to settle his nerves for the moment, the little black specks at the starting post and the larger specks as the horses turned the first corner. The rest of the people on the coach were making a great deal of noise, he remembered, but he, who had more to lose than any one or all of them together, had stood quite still with his feet on the wheel and his back against the box seat, and with his hands sunk into his pockets and the nails cutting through his gloves. The specks grew into horses with bits of color on them, and then the deep muttering roar of the crowd merged into sharper, quicker, impatient cries, as the horses turned into the stretch, with only their heads showing towards the goal. Some of the people were shouting "Firefly" and others were calling on "Vixen" and others, who had their glasses up, cried, "Trouble leads!" but he only waited until he could distinguish the ribbon colors, with his lips pressed tightly together. Then they came so close that their hoofs echoed as loudly as when horses gallop over a bridge, and from among the leaders Siren's beautiful head and shoulders showed like sealskin in the sun, and the boy on her back leaned forward and touched her gently with his hand, as they had so often seen him do on the down, and Siren, as though he had touched a spring, leaped forward with her head shooting back and out, like a piston-rod that has broken loose from its fastening and beats the air, while the jockey sat motionless, with his right arm hanging at his side as limply as though it were broken, and with his left moving forward and back in time with the desperate strokes of the horse's head.

"Siren wins!" cried Lord Norton, with a grim smile, and "Siren!" the mob shouted back with wonder and angry disappointment, and "Siren!" the hills echoed from far across the course. Young Harringford felt as if he had suddenly been lifted into heaven after three months of purgatory, and smiled uncertainly at the excited people on the coach about him. It made him smile even now when he recalled young Norton's flushed face and the awe and reproach in his voice when he climbed up and whispered: "Why, Cecil, they say in the ring you've won a fortune, and you never told us." And how Griffith, the biggest of the bookmakers, with the rest of them at his back, came up to him and touched his hat resentfully, and said: "You'll have to give us time, sir; I'm very hard hit;" and how the crowd stood about him and looked at him curiously, and the Certain Royal Personage turned and said: "Who—not that boy, surely?" Then now, on the day following, the papers told of the young gentleman who of all others had won a fortune, thousands and thousands of pounds, they said, getting back 60 for every one he had ventured; and pictured him in baby clothes with the cup in his arms, or in an Eton jacket; and how all of them spoke of him slightingly, or admiringly, as the "Goodwood Plunger."

He did not care to go on after that; to recall the mortification of his father, whose pride was hurt and whose hopes were dashed by this sudden, mad freak of fortune, nor how he railed at and provoked him until the boy rebelled and went back to the courses, where he was a celebrity and a king.

The rest is a very common story. Fortune and greater fortune at first; days in which he could not lose, days in which he drove back to the crowded inns choked with dust, sunburnt and fagged with excitement, to a riotous supper and baccarat, and afterward went to sleep, only to see cards and horses and moving crowds and clouds of dust; days spent in a short covert coat, with a field glass over his shoulder and with a pasteboard ticket dangling from his buttonhole; and then came the change that brought conscience up again, and the visits to the Jews, and the slights of the men who had never been his friends, but whom he had thought had at least liked him for himself, even if he did not like them; and then debts, and more debts, and the borrowing of money to pay here and there, and threats of executions; and, with it all, the longing for the fields and trout springs of Surrey and the walk across the park to where she lived. This grew so strong that he wrote to his father, and was told briefly that he who was to have kept up the family name had dragged it into the dust of the race courses, and had changed it at his own wish to that of the Boy Plunger—and that the breach was irreconcilable.

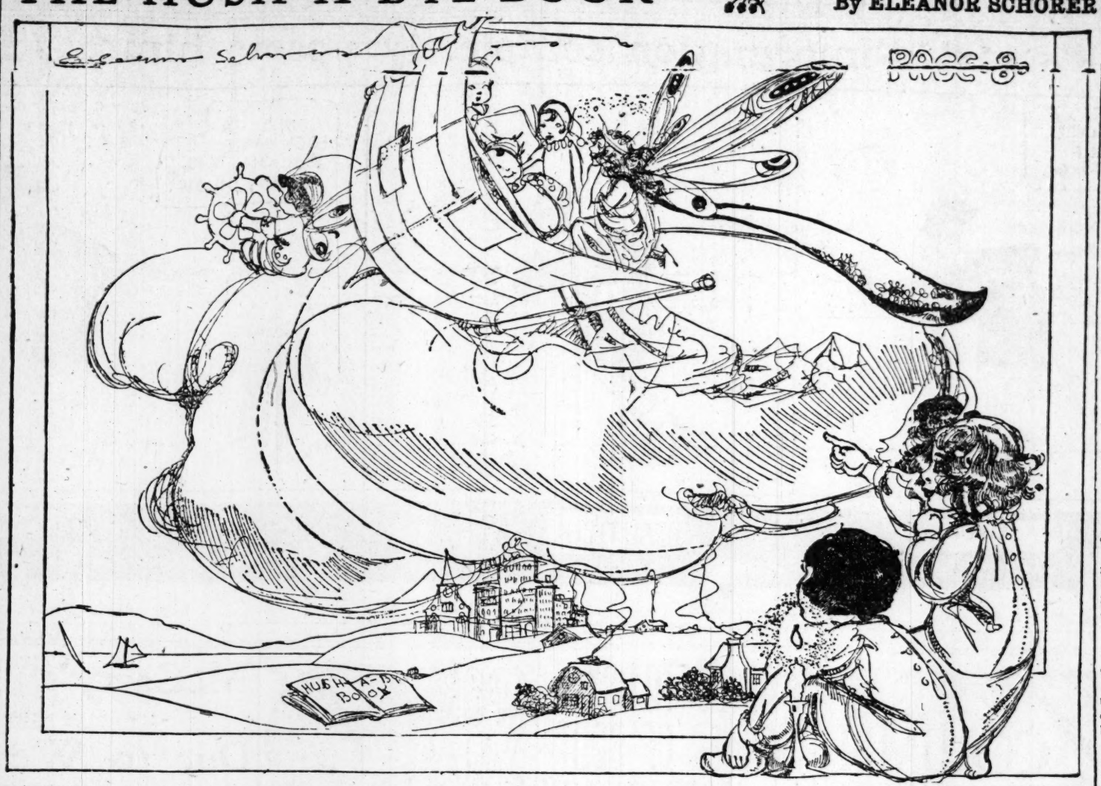

Then this queer feeling came on, and he wondered why he could not eat, and why he shivered even when the room was warm or the sun shining, and the fear came upon him that with all this trouble and disgrace his head might give way, and then that it had given way. This came to him at all times, and lately more frequently and with a fresher, more cruel thrill of terror, and he began to watch himself and note how he spoke, and to repeat over what he had said to see if it were sensible, and to question himself as to why he laughed, and at what. It was not a question of whether it would or would not be cowardly; it was simply a necessity. The thing had to be stopped. He had to have sleep and peace again. He had boasted in those reckless preposterous days that if by any possible chance he should lose his money he would drive a hansom, or emigrate to the colonies, or take the shilling. He had no patience in those days with men who could not live on in adversity, and who were found in the gun-room with a hole in their heads, and whose family asked their friends to believe that a man who used firearms from his school days had tried to load a hair-trigger revolver with the muzzle pointed at his forehead. He had expressed a fine contempt for these men then, but now he had forgotten all that, and thought only of the relief it would bring, and not how others might suffer by it. If he did not consider this, it was only to conclude that they would quite understand, and be glad that his pain and fear were over.

Then he planned a grand coup which was to pay off all his debts and give him a second chance to present himself a supplicant at his father's house. If it failed, he would have to stop this queer feeling in his head at once. The Grand Prix and the English horse was the final coup. On this depended everything—the return of his fortunes, the reconciliation with his father, and the possibility of meeting her again. It was a very hot day, he remembered, and very bright; but the tall poplars on the road of the races seemed to stop growing just at a level with his eyes. Below that it was clear enough, but all above seemed black—as though a cloud had fallen and was hanging just over the people's heads. He thought of speaking of this to his man Walters, who had followed his fortunes from the first, but decided not to do so, for, as it was, he had noticed that Walters had observed him closely of late and had seemed to spy upon him. The race began, and he looked through his glass for the English horse in the front and could not find her, and the Frenchman beside him cried, "Frou Frou!" as Frou Frou passed the goal. He lowered his glasses slowly and unscrewed them very carefully before dropping them back into the case; then he buckled the strap, and turned and looked about him. Two Frenchmen who had won a hundred francs between them were jumping and dancing at his side. He remembered wondering why they did not speak in English. Then the sunlight changed to a yellow, nasty glare, as though a calcium light had been turned on the glass and colors, and he pushed his way back to his carriage, leaning heavily on the servant's arm, and drove slowly back to Paris, with the driver flecking his horses fretfully with his whip, for he had wished to wait and see the end of the races.

To be continued Tuesday and ended on Wednesday.

THE HUSH-A-BYE BOOK

Done for the Post-Dispatch By ELEANOR SCHORER

GREAT happenings in the Land of Heavylids last night! A most peculiar thing took place when the Hush-a-bye Book opened—instead of the sprightly little fellows who usually jump out there rose slowly from page eight a soft, fleecy cloud. Upon it sat a little pilot.

"All aboard!" he shouted.

And the little Book-People climbed up on the cloud. Some one hoisted a sail and away they flew. It was indeed a merry sight to see those cunning little people who afford children so much pleasure having such a happy time themselves. Up, up they flew, high above the earth, leaving the Hush-a-bye Book lying open on the lawn. The Queen's long train stretched far behind and her golden hair shone more brightly than ever in the sunlight.

Bessie and her brother Bobbie watched the little Book-People cross the border between the Land of Heavylids and the Land of Open Eyes. The little Book-People peered down at the Land of Open Eyes, which lay below them, as eagerly as all children explore the Land of Heavylids when first they go there. The tall buildings, church steeples, beautiful parks and immense rivers were wonders undreamed of to the little Book-People.

Both kiddies noticed that as the cloud sailed over the Land of Open Eyes it made the earth rather dreary. It was just the kind of dreary day Bessie and Bobbie had never liked. But they don't mind those days any more, because they think of the bully time the little Book-People are having.

A T a certain period in every child's life the habit to "collect" (or more correctly, the instinct to collect) is predominant. The parent is making a serious mistake when he or she shows a lack of interest. He may collect pictures that are given away by the vendors of merchandise; it may be buttons, it may be marbles, or it may be toads, spiders or snakes. Encourage him to make shelves, boxes or cabinets in which to keep his collection classified and arranged.

The conscientious mother should be careful not to show fear of any of the lad's animal exhibits, lest she lead the child to believe in the common superstitions to the effect that this or that innocent creature is harmful. How many of us, even to this day, have failed to wipe out of our minds the thought that to handle a frog may result in the acquisition of warts!

If the child bring into the house a handful of cocoons, and pieces of dried leaves are dropped on the floor, do not order him "to take that dirt right out of the house." Immediately take an interest in what he is doing; show him how to keep the cocoons in boxes in a room that is always kept warm. Point out to him how to mount the moth that will soon make its appearance and then give him a set of woodworking tools, so that he can build a shelved box in which to keep his collection of butterflies and moths.

Remember that this instinct to collect usually comes but once during the lifetime of a child—usually when the child is in his or her twelfth or thirteenth year. Take advantage of that natural instinct. Do not squelch it. And you will have at hand a means of interesting the child in comparison with which the interest in a subject awakened by your direct orders pales into insignificance.

After his collection has been made, then point out to him the long, tubular sucking tongue of the butterfly and the four wings covered with beautiful overlapping scales that adhere to your fingers when handled. Then tell him to place an ordinary caterpillar with its favorite food in a glass-covered box. For several days it will eat and eat and eat. Finally it will stop eating and spin a kind of a cobweb around itself. The child knows of the change that will transform the cocoon into the egg-laying moth.

THE WHY OF CUSTOMS RELATING TO WEDDINGS

FOR ages the wedding ring has been a token of binding authority. The gold symbolizes the purity of affection; the circle the endless love; the price paid for it takes the place of the ancient purchase money. If the ring is lost, tradition says, it is a warning that the husband's love will soon pass away; if broken, that he will die soon.

It is customary to wear the ring on the third finger of the left hand because the third finger of the left hand has been supposed to be connected directly with the heart by a vein called the "vena amoris."

Do you know why brides wear white? In olden days a bride of the poorer classes went to her wedding in white, as a warning to the public that, since she brought nothing to the marriage, her husband was not responsible for her debts. At the beginning of the eighteenth century brides began to introduce touches of color into their costumes. Blue was for constancy and green for youth. Yellow was never worn, as it stood for jealousy.

Not until Shakespeare's time, says the Chicago Tribune, did English wives wear veils. Until then the custom had been for the bride to go to her wedding with her hair hanging loose as a sign of freedom. Immediately, however, upon entering her new home she bound up her hair. This was a sign of submission.

Wedding gifts in olden times were mere loans, to be returned when the couple were well established in their new home. But when the feudal lord increased in power he grew to expect presents for his newly wedded children from those dependent upon him. Later laws were passed compelling a present in value up to one-twentieth of the yearly rent of the tenant.

Marry in Lent and you will live to repent;
Marry in May and you will rue the day.

May and February were held by the ancient Romans to be the two months in the year which were certain to bring ill luck, while even the church before the time of the reformation placed a ban upon all marriages contracted at such times.

Huggins May Have to Sand the Track to Keep the "Big Train" From Slipping

MR. SHORT SPORT: Lunk's inside information completely upsets him

By Jean Knott

MRS. BRITTON DUE WEDNESDAY FOR ANNUAL ELECTION

Many Guesses as to Principal Officers Made, None Have Official Confirmation.

HUGGINS AFTER KONEY

SH-h-h! Don't Tell Anyone, but It's Possible He Won't Trade "Big Train."

By W. J. O'Connor.

Herman Seekamp, treasurer of the Cardinals, announced at noon Monday he had received a message from Mrs. Helene Robison Britton, owner of the St. Louis National League club, that she would not arrive in St. Louis until Wednesday.

The announcement postpones the annual meeting, scheduled for Tuesday, at which new officers of the club were to have been chosen.

Herman Seekamp, the faithful watchdog of the Cardinal club's treasury, shivered Monday morning as he pleaded (over the phone) his ignorance of any or all of Mrs. Britton's plans. Herman was cold, having left the "hay" to answer the call.

However, Herman now is almost confident of holding his job, whereas he, like several others, "didn't know where he was at" for several weeks past. The choicest tip is that Herman will be retained in some important capacity, to advise the new directorate about the many intricacies of the local club's business affairs.

"Hug" Wants to Begin.

Manager Huggins is very eager to have the new president installed. Hug wants to know who will be WHO before the next National League meeting, Feb. 12, when he (Hug) intends to go to New York, armed to the teeth with "trading propositions."

Hug is willing to trade anybody on the club if he can get the right kind of a proposition. He will even part with Ed Koney if Pittsburg or Chicago is willing to pay the price. However, Koney's demand for $7500 isn't going to scare Hug into making a rash trade. The little manager says he "will be fair" with Koney and is willing to talk compromise to the Big Train right now. But Koney is obdurate and the deadlock continues. The new president may be able to act as go-between in settling this argument. Hence the plea for an early announcement of the new chief executive.

The Vernon (Coast League) club has laid claim to Catcher Sam Agnew, drafted by the Browns, and if George Stovall can't use the young receiver he will revert back to the club whence he came. The same is true of Sherstop Baisenti, drafted from the Chattanooga (Southern League) team. Chattanooga wants the Indian back if he fails in the American League.

Two weeks from today the Giants will mobilize in St. Louis and start for Marlin Springs, where the McGraw school of instruction for rookies and recruits is located. This will be the first gun fired in the 1913 baseball campaign.

In hope of getting a flying start, many of the veteran members of McGraw's staff have asked to make the trip South with the second squad. Originally only the Yannigans were booked to leave on Feb. 17. However, Matty, Doyle, Devore, Whitse and Hartley have received permission to go along. McGraw's second detachment, composed entirely of veterans, will reach Marlin Springs on March 1.

MUNY. SOCCER LEAGUE HEADS MEET TONIGHT

Rodowe Abeken, Playgrounds Commissioner, who is handling the affairs of the Municipal Soccer League, announces that a meeting of the soccer team heads will be held in the Juvenile Court room, Municipal Courts Building, tonight.

It was erroneously announced in an afternoon paper that the Municipal Baseball Leagues would hold a meeting tonight at the same place. The baseball meeting will not take place until next week, as the constitution has not yet been completed.

WRAY'S COLUMN

AND PRAY WHY NOT?

FOR cycles and eons—which brings us back almost to the beginning of baseball, in 1870—the president of a baseball club has been expected to show the following qualifications:

One open-hearted smile.
One large, glad hand, equipped well for shaking.
One unlimited capacity—gastronomic and alcoholic.
One easy flow of absorbing but meaningless conversation.
One unfailing bon mot, to-wit: "What will you have?"
One industrious, faithful, tireless, competent secretary, with brains enough for two.

For several decades little difficulty has been found in properly equipping clubs with presidents of this description. The National League has been exceptionally fortunate, Horace Fogel of the Quakers being perhaps the most notable man of all club presidents for adhering to the ideal set forth above.

• • •

REVOLUTION AT HAND.

BUT the vandal arrives at the ringside, with a wrecking crew—and this, too, just about the time the Cardinals are to elect an unfortunate to be known as "President." Said vandals are working on the theory that the president of a baseball club ought to be vulgar, like the ordinary worker, and actually earn his salary. They want the Cardinals not only to have a faithful, competent, honest, etc., secretary; they think the club would get along much better if it also had, instead of a well-groomed, smooth-talking, able bon vivant to dazzle the public, a quiet mole-like president who could pitch in and do things for the club, such as looking after the interests of its woman owner.

• • •

WHAT MIGHT BE.

FAR be it from us to take sides in any such a controversy. We can only remark that the president de luxe of the old school is costing the public the price of a free score card and a legible bulletin board. For a president's 5000 "bones" the Cardinals might actually get a score board that could be read: while the patrons of the place would not have to pay 5 cents daily to see if any of the Cardinals had died over night.

A USELESS APPENDIX.

LUXURIES are all right, if the club wants them. Let it have a $5000 president, who can spend his time with his shoes on the radiator or wearing the brass from Herman Fensky's footrail. But also give the public a few things it might have enjoyed with the sum that would have been saved without this presidential luxury.

• • •

A "TIP" TO THE OWNER.

AS most baseball clubs stand today, the president's berth is a perquisite granted the principal stockholder by the rest of the directors because they can't avoid voting him a salary. There are exceptions; but in the main the secretary and business manager pull the club through all its work. Outside of affixing his signature, the president might as well be in India as in Indiana.

If the Cardinals would get a real, competent, experienced secretary, such as Joe O'Brien or Lloyd Rickart, they could dispense with any other president than a nominal one, and spend his salary on the fans—or at least on the club.

BOMBARDIER WELLS sailed three days ago for America. As he departed on a steamship the fact that he "sailed" invites the suspicion that he might have been three sheets in the wind. At any rate, by this time he's half seas over.

• • •

BUT CAN HE EARN IT?

ED KONEY may not get that $7500 he is asking for. In fact, he isn't entitled to it, if John McGraw's philosophy be accepted. John declared that a star player is worth NEARLY as much as he asks for. Hold out for $7499.99, Ed. That fills the requirements.

Court May Decide Whether "Dodo" Ball Can Be Barred From Tourneys.

While the referendum vote of the American Bowling Congress is being taken to decide whether the "dodo" or loaded ball shall be barred from matches held under A. B. C. rules is being taken, a legal case is pending in New York which may have a bearing on the settling of the much talked of dispute.

The "dodo" ball is loaded with metal, generally through the finger holes, so that one-half of the ball weighs nine pounds and the other seven. In rolling the ball the difference in weights imparts a "hook" or curve, which makes it break in at a sharp angle, as it approaches the 1-3 pin combination, insuring a better chance of spreading the pins for a "strike."

Injunction Ties Up Prize.

The case referred to involved the use of such a loaded ball. The B. B. C. five of Chicago, winners of the American Bowling Congress championship of 1912, entered the Metropolitan tournament. Koster, a member of the team, used a "dodo" ball. The B. B. C.s won the event, but the Metropolitan Bowling Association threw out the score because of the use of the loaded ball. The prize was awarded to the next high team. Thereupon the high score rollers, the B. B. C. men, obtained a restraining order from the court, preventing the organization from turning over the prize to the second high team, until it could show cause why the B. B. C.'s high score should not take precedence.

Arguments of the case on its merits have not yet come up, but are expected to be heard soon. Upon the disposition of the case may depend the right of bowling associations to prohibit the use of the loaded mineralite ball.

However, any such complication can probably be removed by altering the A. B. C. rules.

Hard to Detect "Dodo."

One grave difficulty that confronts the A. B. C. in its efforts to have the use of the solid mineralite ball made compulsory is how to detect the loaded ball.

The only means yet discovered is by the employment of a mercury bath. When placed in this the mercury, being dense enough to support the weight of the ball without letting it sink to the bottom, gives sufficient play for the heavy side of the sphere to turn to the bottom.

But the mercury bath is expensive and alley owners do not care to go to that expense. It is difficult to say positively from the action of a ball on the alleys whether its hook arises from its having been loaded or from the curve imparted by the bowler's delivery.

Makers Prefer Solid Ball.

The principal bowling-ball factories would doubtless be willing to abandon the making of the loaded ball, should any sort of agreement be reached. But even here there is a difficulty, for the individual can readily enough born the finger holes deeper and even load them himself, if he cares to. It's a simple process. A hook effect somewhat similar to that of the loaded ball is also obtained by boring the finger holes to different depths. Even the slight difference in weight made by this process serves to add a certain curve to the delivery.

An overwhelming majority of responses to inquiries from prominent bowlers reveals the fact that the bowlers are strongly against the "dodo" ball. The next meeting of the American Bowling Congress, to be held at Toledo, Feb. 22, will doubtless officially abolish the use of this freak.

But how it will deal with the problems of enforcement is what is worrying the "bugs."

RAY AND VARDEN TO TRY FOR AMERICAN GOLF CUP

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The entry of Edward Ray, the British open champion, and Harry Varden, five times holder of the title, is assured by the recently announced postponement of the American open golf championship from June until Sept. 17-18, at Brookline, Mass. The United States Golf Association officials have received word from the English players that the dates will be agreeable to them. It is also said that George Duncan, one of the leading British professionals, is likely to compete.

The change also enables Jack McDermott, the young Atlantic City golfer, who is the first American to hold the title of open champion here, to appear in defense of the trophy.

M'GINLEY TO BOX WINNER OF BOUT AT FUTURE CITY

Magirl-Rowen Contest Starts Elimination Series Between Welterweights.

Tonight's Bouts.

Jimmy Clabby vs. Greek Brown, 10 rounds, at Milwaukee.

Matty McCue vs. Freddie Andrews, 8 rounds, at Milwaukee.

Sammy Baker vs. Young Joey, 10 rounds, at Geneva, N. Y.

Joe Mandot vs. Mickey Sheridan, 8 rounds, at Memphis, Tenn.

Jack Dillon vs. Bill McKinnon, 10 rounds, at Providence, R. I.

Tommy Dixon vs. Carl Fleming, 10 rounds, at Sapulpa, Ok.

Jack Daly vs. George Coogan, 10 rounds, at Indianapolis, Ind.

One-Round Casey vs. Kid Devon, 8 rounds, at Indianapolis, Ind.

Young Jack O'Brien vs. Kid Curley, 6 rounds, at Philadelphia, Pa.

The Art Magirl-Marty Rowen contest, which will feature the next big fistic card, Thursday evening, Feb. 6, at the Future City A. C., will be the first in an elimination process to evolve a champion in the welterweight division. There are about six boxers who are logical claimants to the clouded title, but the championship has been an empty honor since Joe Walcott's days. Matchmaker Sullivan of the Future City A. C. is contemplating emulating the example of Tom McCarey of Los Angeles in determining a champion. Accordingly, his plan following the Magirl-Rowen contest next Thursday is to bring the best boys of the country here to fight it out among themselves.

The fight next Thursday will probably be the best among big boys seen here since Magirl met Harry Brewer at the St. Louis A. C., Sept. 24.

Steve McGinley will probably be matched with the winner of the contest.

Although Rowen has never appeared in a local arena, the record preceding him here stamps him as a formidable rival to all aspiring welterweights. Rowen has been swapping punches in the far West for some time, but his home is in Carlinville, Ill.

Fought Draw With Brewer.

His most notable ring achievement was his 15-round draw with Harry Brewer, which took place in Salt Lake Oct. 12. In this scrap, according to reports wafted around the country, Rowen had the shade. In the third session he floored Brewer and the bell came to the latter's rescue.

Both Magirl and Rowen are built on similar lines, rugged, stocky and withal are known to carry powerful kicks. They are scheduled to go eight rounds at 148 pounds, weigh in at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of the show.

Three Bouts Carded.

Matchmaker Sullivan announces that three bouts will constitute the evening's program. Arias Fanning, the clever and shifty Oklahoma bantamweight, whose first ring encounter in St. Louis was with Ollie Bishop, will meet Young Gerrity in an eight-round affair at 115 pounds. Bishop is the same youngster who earned a victory over "Peanuts" Schieberl last Thursday at the Coliseum.

Paddy Kelly and Eddie Johnson will furnish an eight-round contest at 133 pounds.

Peppers to Box at Peoria.

The three bouts in which Kid Peppers figured recently, those with Bennie McGovern, Nell Ford and Kid Krug, have brought him an offer from Matchmaker Steele of the Peoria A. C. for a scrap with Danny Dans of Monmouth, Ill. Peppers also has a match in view with Patsy McKenna for the next show at the Columbia A. C.

Barney McCarthy, promoter of the Tower Social Club and the Granite City A. C., called off the proposed show announced for Feb. 7 in Granite City.

Moore Buys B. M. A. C. Ring.

The gymnasium paraphernalia of the Irish-American A. C., which was sold to the Business Men's A. C. when the former club closed its doors, reverted back to its original owner, Frank X. Moore. The Hibernian promoter bought the works Saturday from Ollie Kirk and they will be installed at Moore's present club, Vandeventer and Easton avenues.

Danny Culleh, the angular constructed coast lightweight, who fought Leo Kelly here last month and who also engaged in a 15-round draw with Bobby Waugh last week in Oklahoma City, arrived in St. Louis Saturday and will probably be matched with Tommy Maxwell as a substitute bout for Granite City in which Eddie Hermann and Steve McGinley were to figure.

Beware the Fantic bug, and shun

Long time the dampsome foe he sought.

Carlisle May Replace Harvard on Dartmouth Schedule Next Season

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Report that the Dartmouth football authorities are considering a game with Carlisle Indians in New York next fall is current in sporting circles. The fact that Dartmouth has been dropped from the Harvard schedule leaves room for another big game and it is said that the Dartmouth authorities have had a conference with Glenn Warner, the Carlisle coach, regarding the preparation of a game in New York. Boston is also mentioned.

O'DAY DEMANDS $1000 BONUS FROM HERRMANN

They also declare that O'Day claims $1000 bonus for his service last year, which he declares he was promised by President Herrmann if the Cincinnatis finished in the first division.

McCarty's Rise to Title Due to Weakness of Foes

White Champion Is Crude

Conqueror of Kaufman, Flynn and Palzer Is Also Frivolous and Fails to Show Natural Fighting Instinct, Harry Sharpe Says.

By Harry S. Sharpe.

LUTHER McCARTY made a good enough impression when he showed before members of the St. Louis Athletic Club last Thursday night, but he failed to create anything like a sensation in the minds of those who have watched the development and career of heavyweight champions during the past 20 years.

It may be that McCarty will some day be a champion in the real sense of what that term implies, but right now he is merely in the making. He has a splendid physique and the material ability of a born athlete; but that is about the sum total of his championship fighting abilities to date.

Little Opposition to McCarty.

McCarty happens to come along at a time when some good athletes of fighting spirit are making a bid for first place in the boxing world, but none of them has developed a scientific mastery of his profession. None shows the instinctive qualities so highly developed in former ring champions. If the whole bunch of them, McCarty, Palzer, Willard, "Gunboat" Smith, Stewart and Kennedy, were boxing in the days of such men as George Godfrey, Dominick McCaffery, Tom Sharkey, Steve O'Donnel, Gus Ruhlin, Peter Maher, Bob Fitzsimmons Jim Corbett and Jim Jeffries, some of whom never were champions, they would be classed no better than second raters, or third raters.

McCarty looks the best of the lot because he has shown steady improvement in his work, but the chance of his future success seems to rest in development, not in any extraordinary natural fighting ability.

McCarty Sure to Improve.

McCarty will be better than he is now, of course, because experience, if nothing else, will bring about that result, and, in addition to this, his style discloses opportunity for improvement and development by instruction and practice. The young boxer does not seem to have grasped the spirit of his undertaking nor to appreciate the seriousness of his profession.

This is excused by some of his admirers because of his youth, but if he were a born champion and not one that has to be made his work would even now be marked by an earnestness that is altogether lacking.

McCarty Loves the Limelight.

McCarty's disposition at the present time shows more the spirit and bravado of the broncho buster than the spirit and grim determination of a champion pugilist.

So far as concerns McCarty's ability as a boxer, it will require many changes in his present style before he can be called clever and he has a long way to go before he will have the sort of cleverness possessed by real champions. This does not consist of mere strength, speed, hitting and blocking ability, but, in addition to this, fighting sense and a judgment of distance so good that a glove coming to them at full speed can be looked squarely in the face and then avoided just in time by a turn of the head that is not too much, but just enough.

This is the sort of thing that made men like Griffo, Jim Corbett, "Kid" McCoy, Abe Attell and Packey McFarland successful far beyond their physical strength and muscular development. There never has been a champion without it, but some of them have possessed more of it than others. How much McCarty has of this fighting sense, or will have, has not yet been determined, but it would be a more hopeful sign for him if it was a little more pronounced now.

"Hope" Is Right.

The cowboy boxer is put right where he belongs when he is classed as a "hope." The title of "white heavyweight champion" has not made him any more formidable. He'll have to show something more than he has so far.

Johnson, Langford, Jeanette and McVey, all negro fighters of exceptional merit, seem to have the buffalo sign on all the "hopes," past and present.

It therefore behooves McCarty to get right down to the hard work of his profession and become a student of the game because his equipment is none too good, and a disposition on his part to let well enough alone is apt to incubate a busted bubble.

Not Yet the Whole Cheese.

He is not yet a "big stir" in public estimation and, in truth, is not taken very seriously. Where he has exhibited since winning from Al Palzer he has been received with more laughter and good-natured raillery than applause, and his rope-twirling act which is a very weak imitation of the trick work done by hundreds of cowboys.

If McCarty can make good in the ring he can drop the rope-twirling act, and the sooner he is able to do it the better.

MAUPOME OPENS AGAINST BROOKLYN STAR TONIGHT

Pedro Maupome slightly disappointed his followers by losing two of the three matches to New York in the National Amateur Three-Cushion League series last week, but the local devotees of the green cloth are sanguine in their hopes that the Mexican will get going against Brooklyn Monday evening. Maupome will play three games on the wrong end of the Brooklyn bridge, opposing Charles Otis in each tilt.

PASTIME LEAGUE WILL MAKE ROOM FOR CHAMP LEOS

Nine-Time Winners of Soccer Title Will Line Up With Kavanaugh's Organization.

One club will be dropped from the Pastime Park Soccer League to make room for the St. Leos, nine-time pennant winners, at a reorganization meeting which has been called for Tuesday evening. As told in Saturday's Post-Dispatch, the champions will henceforth show at Pastime Park under the managership of Duke Sheehan, gatekeeper, who succeeds Billy Klosterman, resigned.

Sheehan says the Leos will perform intact next Sunday. Duke further avers that it is his intention to keep his club in condition in case the players decide to accept the offer of the Eastern teams for a series of games in New England. Sheehan expects to have a definite answer from the Eastern clubs Wednesday, as a special meeting of the American Football Association will be held in Newark, N. J., Tuesday to arrange a schedule for the local champions.

To "Loan" St. Leo's Subs.

When the Pastime League is reorganized one of the present teams will be dropped, but the best players of the particular club will be awarded to other teams in the league. Substitute players on the St. Leos' roster will be "loaned" to the other team, thereby balancing the league.

PASTIME PARK RESULTS.

The race in the Pastime Park League tightened as a result of Sunday's double header. The pace-making O'Briens battled to a draw, 0—0, with the Dempseys, while the Yawitz team, now in the runner-up berth, defeated the Millers, 2—0. Several of the St. Leo players lined up with the Dempseys and Millers Sunday.

Clears Skin of Worst Eruptions

Remarkable Action of a Remedy That Drives Every Speck of Poison From Body.

There is a strange, mysterious power in a remarkable blood medicine that finds its way through the circulation to what is known as Divine selection. This remedy is Swift's Sure Specific, S. S. S.

Science cannot explain just why certain elements in the blood feed the bones, others nourish the hair roots and so on. And it is this same mysterious action of S. S. S. that attacks all diseased spots, drives away all germs, heals all sores and supplies the activity of disease germs with the powerful healing action of leucocytes. Remarkable testimonials have been written that prove beyond question that there is no blood disease but what can be cured by S. S. S. And in all of these cases that were treated with mercury, iodides, arsenic, copper and other mineralis with no permanent effect, S. S. S. most astonishing recoveries have been made by S. S. S.

There is not a blood taint of any nature that can remain in a system purified by this most wonderful remedy, for it is absolutely pure and contains only those elements that the blood naturally assimilates, and which the tissues gratefully accept. It agrees with the most delicate stomach, even in those cases where the use of strong drugs has so weakened the digestive organs that medicine cannot be given. A $1.00 bottle of S. S. S. at drug stores and thus be assured of a complete cure of any eruptive blood disease. If your case is peculiar and you desire special advice write to The Swift Specific Co., Medical Dept., 127 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

SKATER SAVES GIRL, BREAKS IN, OTHER GIRL RESCUES HIM

Athlete Risks Life in Pushing Companion Over Thin Ice to Safety.

TOWED BY BAMBOO POLE

S. E. Boudreau Is Ill at Home After Experience at Pond at Valley Park.

Staunton E. Boudreau, a lawyer, was rescued, Sunday, after he had broken through the ice when skating on a pond at Valley Park, by Miss Ethel Coleman, who held out a bamboo fishing pole and dragged him to the shore. Boudreau broke through the thin ice after he had shoved to safety Miss Elizabeth Steigerwald, who was skating with him. The force of his effort to save the girl broke the ice and Boudreau dropped into the icy water.

Boudreau and three companions, all of whom are athletes and former football players boarding at 3749 Westminster place, went to Valley Park to skate. His companions were Max Romberg and Frank Sieh, law students at St. Louis University, and Herman Romberg. Sieh was captain of the St. Louis University football team last year.

They went to the home of Miss Steigerwald in Valley Park, and there met Miss Coleman. The party of six went to a large pond a mile north of the Steigerwald home.

Raced Away From Others.

Boudreau and Miss Steigerwald skated together and raced away from the others to the far side of the pond where the thin ice began. Boudreau was first to realize that the ice was not thick enough to bear the weight of both. He swung Miss Steigerwald around and shoved her toward the shore, 150 feet distant.

When Boudreau broke through he clung to the ice in water over his depth, although it began crumbling under his weight. His companions shoved a plank toward him, but the board broke the ice and threw Boudreau back into the water. Miss Coleman found a bamboo fishing pole on the bank. She skated as near as she could with safety and shoved the pole to Boudreau.

Pulled Back to Shore.

Boudreau grasped the pole and the young woman pulled him back to the thick ice, when the men towed the almost frozen man to the shore.

After Boudreau was rescued a bonfire was built and the young women retired from the pond. Boudreau removed his clothing and put on sweaters, furs and other wearing apparel of Misses Steigerwald and Coleman. He then walked to the Steigerwald home, where he was given other clothing, and he was brought to his home in St. Louis.

Boudreau is confined to his bed in his rooms. His physician said he will be able to be out in a few days if pneumonia does not develop.

PROMOTERS GET 5 YEARS EACH FOR LAND FRAUDS

Colburn and Winegar Appeal From Judge Dyer's Sentence.

George L. Colburn and M. G. Winegar, convicted last week under two indictments in the United States District Court charging the use of the mails to perpetrate land frauds, were sentenced Monday by Judge Dyer.

Each was fined $500 and sentenced to 18 months in the Leavenworth Penitentiary on the first indictment, and each was fined $500 and sentenced to five years on the second charge. Judge Dyer ordered that the prison terms shall run concurrently, making the term of each five years.

Attorneys for the men moved for an appeal and Judge Dyer fixed their bonds at $10,000 each pending the hearing.

Colburn was president and Winegar vice-president of the Washington and Choctaw Land Co. The concern owned 39,000 acres of land in Alabama and Mississippi and advertised it extensively for sale, stating it was cleared, fertile land, and that a railroad runs through it. They asked $17.50 an acre for it.

BIG DIVIDEND DECLARED

Standard Oil Company Will Distribute $40 Per Share to Stockholders.

Standard Oil Pays Dividend of $40 Per Share.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey today declared a dividend of $40 a share. It was explained that this dividend represented moneys owed to the company by its subsidiaries at the time of the dissolution.

"The companies have made payments," a statement says, "from time to time as able to do so, from moneys raised by the realization of assets or increase of capital stock."

The dividend is payable Feb. 15. In round figures the total payments to stockholders will amount to $40,000,000.

Announcement was made today that stockholders of the Continental Oil Co. will meet at Council Bluffs, Io., on March 6 to vote on a proposal to terminate the corporate existence of the company. The company was organized in 1884, and was formerly a Standard Oil subsidiary.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Possibly today's New York stock market was dominated by the near approach of the hour when the Constantinople authorities will have to decide whether to yield to the terms of the Balkan allies, or submit to renewal of the war.

"In Europe the crisis (if such it is) seemed to be regarded in opposite ways. At London, for instance, Turkish bonds were lower, but some securities higher, and while the Berlin Stock Exchange showed weakness, the Paris Bourse was rather singularly steady.

"There was, in fact, a sense of something like unreality in the situation, which, on the face of things, surrounded the ultimatum that, in default of acquiescence by the Turks the bombardment of Adrianople will begin tonight, and there certainly was a total absence of any such spirit of uneasiness and apprehension as might have been expected to exist, if actual and serious resumption of the war were regarded as a possibility.

"But it was altogether natural that, in view of the uncertainty as to exactly what tomorrow morning's news will be, that markets on both continents should have halted.

Stock Market Waits.

"From force of habit, the New York market waited expectantly for the weekly decisions of the Supreme Court at midday. The cases of particular interest, notably the Minnesota State rate question, were not passed upon, and the court adjourned for three weeks. But the one corporation decision that was announced, in the suit against the United Shoe Machinery Co., was decided against the Government, in an opinion which emphasized, in a highly interesting way, the important fact that the anti-trust law is in no respect directed against big business.

"With considerable irregularity prices on the Stock Exchange generally lost ground during the day. But there were alternate movements in each direction, and no positive drift of values was in evidence.

"American Can stock—which, for reasons well understood, merits particular notice—opened ¾ point lower, got up fractionally above Saturday's closing then broke nearly 2 points.

Money Is Firmer.

"There was a slightly firmer tendency to time money rates, but the influence was largely sentimental, induced partly by the $25,838,100 loan increase shown in last Saturday's bank returns.

"The banks had a good deal of money to put out on call, but the offerings on time were small, although there was good buying of mercantile paper by institutions here and elsewhere.

"Another $1,000,000 gold was taken for export to Paris, and it was evident that banks there were behind many of the gold shipments from this city to South America.

"The Paris demand for gold was apparently as strong today as it was last week, and indications pointed to large further shipments within the next few weeks.

"It was clear from the character of the negotiations that some large short-term loans were about to be brought out here. A few of the issues may be deferred until a definite settlement of the Balkan complications is arrived at, and until there is a chance of interesting the foreign markets, which are usually large buyers of our notes, in the offerings.

"But there are certain to be no issues of such securities in the near future, as some of the interior banks are showing a disposition to invest in short-term obligations of that sort. Foreign exchange ruled firm on a broad demand for London remittances."

COTTON MARKET RISES ON CONTINENTAL BUYING

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 1 to 4 points, and sold about 7 to 10 points net higher during the early trading on covering and a little bull support and foreign buying. Higher cables than expected were attributed to Continental buying and covering of shorts in Liverpool, while the foreign buying here was said to be partly due to reduced estimates of the East Indian crop. Trading was not active, and during the middle of the morning prices were 4 to 5 points off from the best.

Trading was very quiet later in the morning, but there was continued realizing as well as some scattering local pressure, and prices at midday were back to within a point or two of Saturday's closing figures.

New Orleans wires said that shorts there were rendered somewhat uneasy early by the fact that tomorrow is a holiday there, and apprehensions that rains in the belt were retarding crop preparations; but reports from spot handlers in the Atlantic states claim that preparations are up to the average, with prospects pointing to increased acreage.

World's wheat shipments of 15,728,000 bu, against 11,840,000 bu last week and 7,722,000 bu last year, supplies on passage of 37,704,000 bu, compared with 32,832,000 bu a week ago, and 28,944,0000 bu a year ago, receipts of 1070 cars in the Northwest, against 836 last year and a weather map showing general snow over the winter wheat belt, proved too much for the bulls Monday, and prices averaged a sharp fraction lower on all the active options.

Barely steady Liverpool cables, despite expectations of a resumption of hostilities in the Balkans, only added to the bearish sentiment.

Pit opinion is bearish, as under favorable winter wheat conditions like the present, prices usually show some decline in February.

Corn futures reflected a steady demand, owing to the winter weather and only moderately heavy receipts. The amount on passage decreased 2,533,000 bu for the week, to 23,350,000 bu, against 25,883,000 bu last week and 12,207,000 bu last year. Cables were unchanged. Oats futures were quiet and practically unchanged.

Broomhall's official Liverpool cable said: "The easier American cables on Saturday and the heavier world's shipments were offset by the unfavorable political news, and prices opened unchanged to ⅛d lower. American shipments continue large, with Plate offers liberal, and other shipments are increasing, but notwithstanding these there was an undercurrent of strength, and prominent firms supported the market, owing to the rapid absorption and the decreasing stocks here.

"Corn opened unchanged and later declined ⅛d for the American grade. There were large world's shipments to Liverpool, with freer American offers. The Plate grade was well supported on the continued dry weather in Argentine."

Liverpool wheat futures closed ¼d lower, corn ⅛d to ⅜d up. Paris, holiday; Antwerp wheat ⅝c lower, Berlin unchanged, and Budapest ½c lower.

Minneapolis wheat cars were 565, against 944 last week and 368 last year. Duluth 92, against 61 and 3. Winnipeg 413, against 455 and 465.

Local wheat receipts were 211,200 bu or 135 cars local, 41 through; last year 56,400 bu or 43 cars local, 4 through. Corn receipts, 190,000 bu, or 125 cars local, 34 through; last year 267,600 bu, or 201 cars local, 22 through. Oats receipts 117,200 bu, or 37 cars local, 32 through; last year 71,400 bu, or 35 cars local, 7 through.

Bank of England Buys New Gold Offered in London.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Money and discount rates were easier today. The Bank of England secured most of the $3,000,000 new gold offered in the open market. Pending the resumption of war or peace negotiations, the tone of the market was easy, and prices dropped from lack of support, until Paris buying strengthened Rio Tintos and Kaffirs and helped to make a generally steadier closing. Nigerian tin shares fluctuated widely and closed higher. American securities were quiet and prices moved irregularly during the forenoon. Later New York buying improved the list, with the exceptions of Canadian Pacific and Southern Pacific, which were easier. The closing was steady.

LIVESTOCK.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., Feb. 3.—Comparative receipts table:

	Today.	Week Ago.	Year Ago.
Cattle	4,200	5,282	3,119
Hogs	10,000	12,601	7,187
Sheep	3,300	3,132	4,737
Horses and mules	1,500	2,700	2,200

NATIVE CATTLE—Receipts in this department were moderate, totaling 2200 head. Steers were slow sale and cows likewise. Heifer market unchanged and canners about the same as at the close last week. Veal calf market broke 50c. A fair inquiry for feeding cattle, steers selling up to $7.20 to go back to the country.

SOUTHERN CATTLE—In the quarantine division the run totaled 2000 head. Steers were slow but about steady. Canners sold readily at unchanged prices. Calves and yearlings were a little sluggish moving to the shambles.

HOGS—A good moderate supply arrived and the market was on a steady basis for all good grade hogs. It was an active trade most of the day and closed on a firm basis and with a good clearance. The top was $7.80 and the bulk went at $7.65@7.75. Butchers and shippers were really the best buyers, but still the packers paid $7.60@7.75 for a good grade of hogs at $7.25@7.60 for the fair kinds. Shippers and city butchers paid $7.70 and upwards for their hogs as a rule. Best grade of light weights went at $7.25@7.60, best quality pigs $6.85@7.25, medium kinds $6.35@6.75, poor grades $5.25@6.25 and the rough heavy packers $7@7.25.

SHEEP—A moderate supply was received and there was no material change to the market. Best fat lambs brought $7.35@8.75, medium grades, $7.50@8.25; yearlings, $7.35@7.75; mutton sheep, $5@5.25; stockers, $3.25@4, and bulk, $3.75@4.

HORSES AND MULES—The horse market opened strong this morning. Yesterday's run embraced about 800 head and indications were that about one-half this number would go in the ring today. Southern demand was not quite as good as last week, with prices about even. Eastern buyers were in evidence with prices steady.

The mule trade was rather quiet, with a great many of the commoner kinds being held over from last week. The demand for good, fat, cotton mules was about steady with last week, prices on this kind remaining steady.

An out-of-town wedding of interest here is that of Miss Alice Hager, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hager, formerly of St. Louis, and Mathew J. Gilbert, which was celebrated Saturday in Los Angeles, Cal., where the bride's parents went to live last autumn.

Mr. Gilbert and his bride are going for a wedding trip around the world and will arrive here in the fall to reside.

Mr. Gilbert is a brother of Mrs. Henry F. Lodge of 300 North Newstead avenue.

Miss Lucile Murphy daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Aiken Murphy of 4548 West Pine boulevard and Henry Gouveneur Keeler were married Saturday evening at 6 o'clock at the New Cathedral Chapel.

The Rev. Father Francis Gilfillan officiated. Miss Dorothy Murphy was her sister's maid of honor and Miss Louise Hemenway was bridemaid.

Miss Florence Nulsen, who was to have been another bridemaid, was prevented on account of illness and the bride's cousin, Mrs. Joseph J. Hayes of Sedalia, Mo., served in her place.

Julius Reinholdt was Mr. Keeler's best man and the ushers were: Russell E. Gardner Jr., Elzy Burkham, Eswald Waterman and Bazel Haynes.

Only the relatives and the nearest friends went to the house after the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Keeler have gone South to spend their honeymoon and will return here to live. The bride is the granddaughter of Frederick von Phul and is related to many of the pioneer families of St. Louis. She is the great-great-granddaughter of Dr. Saugrain, the friend of Benjamin Franklin, who used to experiment with lightning together.

Miss Virginia Chew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Chew, has returned from Washington, where she has been at school, to join her mother and sail, May 17, for Europe, where Miss Chew will study music.

It has not been decided whether she will study under Lily Lehman in Berlin or Emma Calve, who heard her sing while here a day or two ago.

Miss Chew has a beautiful voice and will devote the next three years seriously to it and if its promises are fulfilled she will be trained for the operatic stage.

Mrs. Chew will return home in the autumn.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Landeker of 5269 Vernon avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Doris Landeker, to Nathan Rosenthal of St. Louis.

TOM TAGGART, AS PROGRESSIVE, HITS THE CORPORATIONS

Indiana Boss Lays Out Plan of New Legislation Making "Interests" Sit Up.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 3.—Tom Taggart, Democratic boss, with all but 15 votes of a Legislature in his party, has turned progressive in act as well as in platform. There were a good many smiles when Taggart, addressing the Democratic members of the Assembly, said:

"Let no one seek excuse for failing in his part to do the work before you. The public eye is upon all and no one recreant in public duty need hope to escape the indignation of the public."

Then, as legislation was offered, Taggart let it become known what bills he would like to see passed. Some of them follow:

Strong public utilities law.

Inheritance tax measure.

Compulsory workingmen's compensation law.

Recall of city officials and franchise referendum elections.

"Blue Sky" law with the addition of forbidding of the allotment of promotion stocks.

Larger appropriations for State educational institutions.

When the votes in Indiana were counted last November and it was found that all but 15 legislators and all State officials were Democrats the corporation representatives laughed long and loud. They had forgotten that Taggart was one of those who went to the aid of Woodrow Wilson, at least they did not take this act seriously. After the Assembly convened, the representatives struggled for a while, but now all are busy trying to gain some minor points in the bills they admit will be passed.

Imports from Asia and Oceania combined amounted to $[illegible] in 1912 as against $160,000,000 in 1902, and the exports to Asia and Oceania for the last year aggregated $[illegible] against $[illegible] 10 years ago.

Rain, Snow, Also Some Cold in the Program for Week

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.

"INDICATIONS are that during the present week, temperatures will be near the seasonal average in all parts of the country, with well distributed precipitation, according to the Weather Bureau bulletin.

"A disturbance which now covers the Southwest," says the bulletin, "will move northeastward, crossing the great central valleys Monday and Monday night and the Eastern States Tuesday or Wednesday. This disturbance will cause general rains and snows Monday in the Southwest and Monday and Tuesday throughout the region between the Mississippi Valley and the Atlantic Coast.

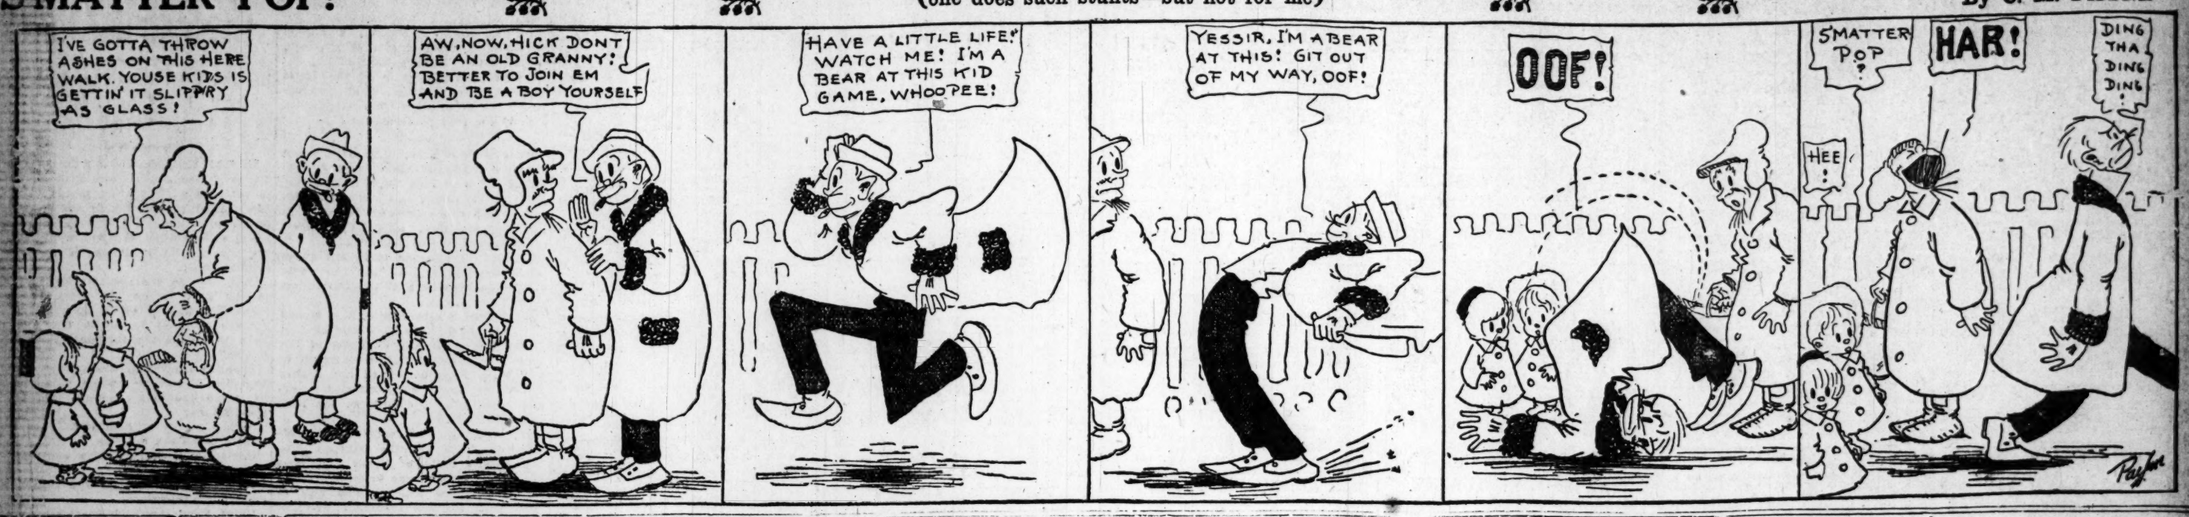

"Another disturbance will appear in the Far West about Wednesday and move eastward over the Middle West Thursday or Friday and the Eastern States near the close of the week. This disturbance will be attended by general precipitation and will, in all probability, terminate the prolonged period of dry weather in the Pacific States. A change to considerably colder weather will over-spread the Northwestern States about Thursday."

It All Depends.

"WHY are you changing that anecdote about the statesman?"

"I'm hitching it onto another statesman," said the hack writer.

"But the first statesman?"

"Wasn't re-elected."

"Oh!"

RAINWATER MOTOR CAR.

THIS is a contrivance to utilize the energy stored up in rainwater. The upper portion, or container, acts as an umbrella, and also transfers the trapped water to two small water motors, strapped underneath the arm pits. The motors are in turn geared on to large roller skates. The hydrostatic pressure in the container will be sufficient to drive the motors, which in turn will drive the skates; and the former straphanger will be propelled home at a speed depending directly upon the intensity of the rain.

I am positive that this invention will be very useless in the arid regions. In fact, I think I deserve the Nobel Prize for 1913, but those big five bones will do.

STORIES ST. LOUISANS TELL

THE WRONGNESS OF GOOD FELLOWS.

R. PERRY SPENCER relates that, in a Baltimore hotel lobby during convention week last July, Senator Stone was approached by a Missouri delegate who was seeking information concerning another Missourian.

"Yes, I know that man," said Stone. "He's a good fellow."

A few days later the same man met Stone again, and took him to task. "I asked you about ——," he said, "and you told me he was all right. So I cashed a $20 check for him, and now it's come back marked 'No funds.'"

"I didn't tell you he was all right," Stone protested. "I told you he was a good fellow. Don't you know that there's a big difference, sometimes, between being a good fellow and being all right?"

"Well," said the Senator's friend, "I know it now."

Information Wanted.

IN a case tried in Missouri the charge was theft of a watch; the evidence was most conflicting, and, as the jury retired, the Judge observed that he would be glad to assist in the adjustment of any difficulties that might present themselves to the mind of the jury.

All but one of the jurors had filed out of the box. There was on the face of the one who remained an expression betokening the extremest perplexity.

Observing his hesitancy, His Honor asked:

"Is there any question you'd like to ask me?"

At this the twelfth juror's face brightened.

"Yes, Your Honor," was the eager response, "I'd be awful glad if you'd tell me whether the prisoner really stole the watch."—Green Bag.

Simple.

"I SEE that Missouri demands a uniform for lobbyists," said the Old Fogy.

"I suppose they want them to change from checks to stripes," commented the Grouch.

One on Dad.

THE preacher was calling at little Bobby's house.

"And do you always say your prayers at night, my little man?" asked the clergyman.

"Yes, sir," answered Bobby, "and mamma does, too."

"That's right. But doesn't your papa say his prayers?"

"No—he don't have to."

"Why, what do you mean?"

"He don't have too—you see, he never gets home till it's daylight an' then what is there to pray about?"—Toronto Mail and Empire.

You can't get away from a RED-MAN

THE JARR FAMILY

By ROY L. McCARDELL

Mr. Jarr's Boss shows Napoleonic skill evading a raise.

THE boss had taken Mr. Jarr out to luncheon. Mr. Jarr had asked for a raise of salary. Mr. Jarr's employer was one of those cautious spendthrifts in business who will take a man out and spend $50 on a dinner for him while explaining why they can't give him a $5 raise on account of the hard times.

Mr. Jarr's employer knew Mr. Jarr wanted a raise of salary; he knew Mr. Jarr needed a raise of salary; he was aware of the fact that Mr. Jarr's stipend had stayed at a fixed point for 10 years, while the cost of living had almost doubled.

Mr. Jarr's boss felt the increased cost of living (with an expensive young wife) also. He had been forced to raise the price of the goods he handled at wholesale in consequence. He knew Mr. Jarr ought to have the raise of salary—but he couldn't get his hand open—the boss couldn't.

Consequently, every time Mr. Jarr broached the subject the boss took him out to dinner and, over the highest-priced food and costliest wine, told Mr. Jarr with choking voice how he "just kept his head above water and the business going" by manifold financial ambidextrous feats.

Before Mr. Jarr could get to the point of telling his boss how he simply had to have $5 a week more or quit, the boss' own financial difficulties would have Mr. Jarr so worried that the other would be compelled to cheer him up by opening a few more bottles of rare vintage at about $15 a vint.

Then the boss would buy a box, at speculator's prices, at the reigning theatrical success, just to keep Mr. Jarr from worrying any more over his (the boss') troubles. In fact, Mr. Jarr would get so upset after listening to his boss' financial worries that, as he took Mr. Jarr home in his limousine, it used nearly to break the boss' heart to see Mr. Jarr so blue about it.

Mr. Jarr had been keeping up a strenuous fight for his salary raise. Every morning he went downtown determined to get it, and every evening the boss brought him home, with Mr. Jarr fretting himself over the money the boss was losing.

The prospect of the $5 a week raise was not very bright, but Mr. Jarr had fifteen dinners and had been taken to the theater afterwards, at a total cost to the boss of enough to pay for a year the extra salary Mr. Jarr had asked for.

"Much good that does me or the children!" Mrs. Jarr whimpered that very day. "Why don't he do the thing right and take the whole family out to dinner?"

"Yes, if he'd take us all out to all our meals I wouldn't need the raise," said Mr. Jarr. "But I tell you what you can do; you can sew rubber pockets in my dress suit and I'll distract the boss's attention and fill the pockets with soup and salad and cafe parfait and asparagus, and bring it all home to you and our little ones!"

"Oh, don't talk nonsense!" Mrs. Jarr had retorted. "Don't you let him put you off any more by telling you his troubles. Why, he would never have married Clara Mudridge but for us. Remind him of that."

"No," Mr. Jarr had answered, "that isn't what a good salesman would call 'a talking point.'"

So here they were, Jarr and his boss, at a high price restaurant, and Mr. Jarr waiting a chance to ask for a raise.

When the waiter arrived, Mr. Jarr's boss, who thought because he was rich he could get what he wanted to pay for, began to tell the waiter just what he wanted and just how he wanted it.

"First," said Mr. Jarr's boss, "I want trout, genuine trout, the speckled trout! And tell the chef it must be LIVE trout, understand?"

"Then I want the trout crumbed with crumbs—not cracker dust—C-R-U-M-B-S. Then I want it rubbed with fresh butter—not salt butter—and grilled over hickory wood embers to a light golden brown. Understand, a light golden brown?"

"Yes, sir," said the waiter.

"Then tell the chef to make a sauce with Madeira, not sherry, and serve with the sauce on the side—not over the trout. Understand that?"

The waiter understood it perfectly. The kitchen was right behind where Mr. Jarr was sitting. Through the thin partition Mr. Jarr heard the waiter bawl to the chef:

"Broiled trout!"

"I don't care what they cost," said Mr. Jarr's boss, not hearing this, "I must have my trout just so! What were you saying?"
